Allies Push Hard Upon Germans

British Start Fires at Kiel, While Reds Batter Across Donets Region

Snow Is Deep
Ski Troops Still Carry Burden in Vicinity of Leningrad

(Associated Press War Editor)
Germany's springtime offensive waited today on the calendar, propitious circumstances and Adolf Hitler, but Britain's and Russia's offensives—in the air and on the land, respectively, were in full swing.

The British announced a fire-raising raid on the great German naval base of Kiel while the Red Army, having beaten Hitler to the springtime punch, was battering its way across the Donets Basin.

Via Stockholm came word that Marshal Semeon Timoshenko and his southern army of from one and a quarter to one and a half million men had forced the enemy to draw once more on reserves being prepared for Germany's own offensive effort.

The Germans admitted they still were on the defensive against "strong enemy forces" in the Donets region—gateway to the Caucasus.

London observers held that the objective of Timoshenko's 90 divisions was the Dnieper bend, natural defense line in the heart of the Ukraine.

Unofficial reports have placed them only 30 to 40 miles from this goal.

Snow Still Is Deep
Although the calendar spring is but a week away, snow on the Staraya Russa front, below Leningrad, was reported so deep that ski troops still had to carry the burden of the fighting against the entrapped 16th German army.

The Russian army newspaper Red Star declared there would be only one spring offensive—the Russian.

It described the German invasion machine as worn out and run down, with Hitler's soldiers trying desperately to hold on, counter-attacking repeatedly but at heavy cost and not halting the Red Army's power drive.

Timoshenko's men were said to have reduced two strong points and swept on into a town, unidentified, through streets strewn with German dead.

Vichy reported an aspect of the R. A. F.'s offensive—new sortie over the Paris region, today but there were no immediate reports of bombs dropped. Perhaps it was only reconnaissance.

Apparently attempting to neutralize Kiel as a base for springtime adventures of the German fleet, the R. A. F. unloaded new bombs on ships yards there for the 65th time overnight and the "many fires" resulting told departing bombardiers that their mission was achieved.

Naval installations were set afire and the 26,000-ton battleship Goeben, the battered fugitive from Brest, was also among the targets. Eight planes were lost, mostly to strong anti-aircraft batteries with which Kiel now is ringed.

German night fighters also encountered.

New York Truck Drivers Halt Pre-Easter Flow of New Clothes

New York, March 13 (AP)—All deliveries of women's coats, suits and dresses from the garment district were at a standstill today while the city sought to iron out a strike of 1,500 truck drivers staged at the pre-Easter season.

Members of the A.F.L.-International Ladies Garment Workers Union, Cloak and Dress Drivers and their helpers struck yesterday after a union-demanded wage increase of $5 a week, which is to be discussed today by the union and five trucking associations at city hall.

Present scales range from $42 to $44.50 for drivers; $29.50 to $31.50 for first helpers; and $26.50 for second helpers.

Torpedo Survivor Helped Ashore

Kingston Resident Is Badly Injured In Selkirk Crash

John Brown, 36, Sustains Severe Wounds; Hurley and Rensselaer Men Hurt

John Brown, 36, of South Pine street, was critically injured yesterday afternoon while Carl Schenck, 37, of Hurley and William Lennon, 55, of Rensselaer suffered less severe injuries when the car in which they were riding crashed into the rear of an Adirondack Transit Lines bus at Selkirk. All three injured men were sent to the Albany Hospital.

Mr. Brown, whose condition was still reported as critical today at the hospital, suffered a lacerated forehead, a severe laceration on the right side of the neck, right side of the face and upper lip and lost considerable blood before being taken to the hospital. He was given a transfusion before being removed to the operating room.

Schenck has a scalp and nose laceration and leg abrasions. His condition was reported today as "good."

William Lennon of 312 Broadway, Rensselaer, suffered contusions and lacerations and his condition was likewise reported "good."

According to the statements made after the accident, Frank Ackley, bus operator, had stopped his north bound bus suddenly to avoid a machine which had pulled out into the highway from a filling station and stalled. None of the occupants of the bus suffered injury other than a slight shaking up. The car in which the three men were riding was demolished about the front end when it struck the rear of the bus.

Ackley and Mrs. Katherine Hun Peltz, wife of W. L. L. Peltz of Selkirk, prominent Albany attorney, whose car was also involved in the crash said that the bus had halted suddenly on Route 9-W near Selkirk to avoid striking a machine which had pulled from a filling station and stalled.

Coming up behind the bus the driver of the car first attempted to pass the bus to the left but apparently saw the Peltz car coming down and then attempted to turn back. The north bound car then struck the rear of the bus and bounded backward, taking a bumper off the Peltz car. The Peltz car then went out of control but landed upright in the ditch on the east side of the road. Mrs. Peltz was not injured.

The north bound bus was enroute to Saranac Lake and was due in Albany at 4:50 o'clock. Passengers were delayed about two hours until a bus could be sent from Kingston to continue the trip.

Construction of New Speed Road From New York West Is Proposed

No Time Is Set
Building Would Take Place at Conclusion of War

Albany, N. Y., March 13 (AP)—Construction of a broad, high-speed highway between New York and Buffalo, long studied by state highway officials, was proposed in the legislature today as project to alleviate post-war unemployment.

Assemblyman Abbot Low Moffat, New York city, and Senator William H. Hampton, Utica, sponsored legislation which would put on the state highway map a "thruway" from New York city past Albany, Utica, Syracuse, Rochester and Buffalo, to the Pennsylvania line.

"More than 80 per cent of state population reside in a narrow strip of territory from New York city up the Hudson to Albany and west along the Mohawk valley," they said in a joint statement.

"The connecting highway facilities are inadequate for modern highway traffic," they added, "and, in the long run, it will be cheaper to lay out a modern thruway on new rights of way to be acquired by the state rather than attempt to widen and change the existing highways, most of which go through valuable, built up territory."

The proposal requires no state spending at this time, and was introduced, sponsors said, so that, if and when large public works expenditures are made to provide jobs after the war, there will be ready a really worthwhile, greatly needed project effecting the entire state.

Part of Program
Governor Lehman, legislative leaders and public works officials agreed recently to initiate plans for post-war projects so "no time will be lost" in meeting the expected employment slump.

Physical aspects of the proposed express highway are indicated by stipulations in the bill as to any interim road construction which later could be "dovetailed" into the cross-state project.

The measure would require any such roads be on a right-of-way not less than 200 feet wide, with not less than two lanes for traffic in each direction. Opposing traffic would be separated by a mail and cross traffic at grade would be eliminated.

The project would be placed on the highway map in four sections to be known as the Catskill, Mohawk, Ontario and Erie thruways.

The combination, starting on the New York-New Jersey border at a point near Suffern, would run north to Albany on a line close to Harriman, Highland Mills, Vails Gate, Newburgh, Kingston, Saugerties, West Coxsackie and Ravena.

From Albany the highway would skirt Amsterdam, Johnstown, Fonda, St. Johnsville, Little Falls, Herkimer, Utica, Oneida and Liverpool. From there it would pass Auburn, Seneca Falls, Waterloo, Manchester, Batavia, Lancaster.

Navy Relief Boosters

Hurley Taxpayers Vote to Petition For Fire District

Town Hall Meeting Draws Unanimous Expression; Briggs Tells Work Done by High Falls

Taxpayers of the village of Hurley in the area comprising School District No. 4 voted unanimously at a meeting last evening to have petitions drawn for the formation of a fire district.

The meeting, which was held in the town hall, drew favorable expressions from all present for the organization of a fire zone, as clearly indicative of the need of the community for fire protection both in normal times and those of the emergency represented by the war.

J. Ellis Briggs, of the High Falls Fire Company, spoke at the meeting and outlined the steps taken by the district in his community. "Many who opposed the formation of our district," he said, "have since joined the company in spirit and fact and it would be hard to imagine High Falls without a fire company as a distinct form of security to our fellow townsmen. A fire district properly organized and managed represents economy from beginning to end. The one thing to stress is the fact that expenditures are not vested in any small group, but represent the will of the taxpayers."

Mr. Briggs also outlined the advantage of belonging to the county volunteer system and told of the mutual assistance given.

The committee took immediate steps to have the petitions drawn and the signatures of taxable inhabitants of the district will be sought as soon as the papers are prepared.

Asks Revenge Tells of Jap Cruelty

Los Angeles, March 13 (AP)—Eric Wilson, 20, and China-reared, has asked for work in the U. S. Naval Intelligence Service, explaining that he wants to avenge Japanese cruelties to his sweetheart and his father.

"My girl, Ethel Guravich, was attacked, tortured by 10 Japanese soldiers and left in the street at Yenching to die," Wilson told naval officials.

"My father, Dr. Earl O. Wilson, who remained to serve as professor of science in Yenching University, was put in a concentration camp and there is a 50-50 chance that he is still alive."

He said his knowledge of Chinese and Japanese languages might be of use to the navy.

Boards Completing Area Draft Lists

Serial Numbers Will Be Posted in Few Days at All Centers

Selective Service draft boards of Kingston and Ulster county have been busy assigning serial numbers to the registration cards of men who registered for the third draft, those men between 20 and 21 and from 35 to 44 years of age, whose order numbers will be determined by the drawing at Washington on March 17.

The draft board at Saugerties completed the work of assigning serial numbers today and the lists will be posted and made public today. An alphabetical list is also being prepared.

Inquiry at the Kerhonkson draft board today brought forth the information that the board was still busy with the numbering and the work would not be completed before the first of the week when lists will be posted.

At New Paltz the list was completed today and it was stated the names and numbers would be posted at the draft board office and in the post office on completion today.

At the Kingston office the work was still being carried on and it was stated that the work would shortly be completed and the list made available as soon as possible. Assignment of the serial numbers will be completed prior to the drawing next Tuesday and the lists posted.

Navy Relief Goal Is $440,000 in 63 Counties in State

Thomas Dewey Announces Frank Gannett Is Chairman of Third Naval District

With a goal of $440,000 to be raised in 63 counties, the New York State Citizens' Committee of the Navy Relief Society began functioning today under the chairmanship of Frank Gannett of Rochester.

Appointment of the publisher was announced in New York by Thomas E. Dewey, chairman for the Third Naval District.

"In my opinion this is one of the most important programs before the public," said Gannett in accepting the task. "As the result of Pearl Harbor incident and of other actions not yet fully reported, the Relief Society will have more cause to consider than developed in the Spanish-American and World Wars combined."

"Generous public response to the Society's appeal will be a great stimulus to the morale of every man in the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard."

Gannett's induction as chairman took place in the New York offices of Rear Admiral Adolphus Andrews, commander of the Third Naval District.

It was announced simultaneously that Jerome D. Barnum of Syracuse will assist the new chairman in the capacity of executive vice-chairman of the committee.

Details of organizations and consideration of various plans for raising the big fund occupied the chairman and his advisors today. Success of a mammoth show in New York with stage and screen stars cooperating encouraged Relief Society officials to believe that the public is aware of the merits of the organizations.

Ship Fire Extinguished
New York, March 13 (AP)—A fire apparently originating in rubbish aboard the flame-ravaged $60,000,000 liner Normandie was quickly extinguished today. Workmen engaged in salvaging the 83,423-ton craft sent an alarm that brought 100 armed coast guardsmen, a fireboat and an engine. They brought the blaze under control in 15 minutes. The liner, seized by the government last December and converted into the naval auxiliary Lafayette, was damaged by a blaze February 9. She capsized after this fire was extinguished.

Longshoremen Feed Cats
New York, March 13 (AP)—Refugees from all parts of the world are roaming Hudson river piers these days, forced to depend upon longshoremen for food or else pick up waterfront scraps themselves. Formerly ships' mascots, they are cats, stranded when their freighters steal out into the river at night without the usual pre-war series of whistle blasts that used to bring the felines scampering aboard.

Jap Feint Is Seen in New Thrust

Seven Japanese Ships Are Sunk, Damaged Off New Guinea; U. S. Sub Attacks

Fields Are Bombed
U. S. Heavy Bombers Destroy Five Enemy Planes

(By The Associated Press)
Japan's offensive against Australia, still taking form in the welter of islands curving along the vast northern shore of the continent, has spread off in a tangent of naval penetration of the Solomon Islands.

In the second chief theatre of the war with Japan, the British imperials withdrawing north of Rangoon, have for the first time joined Chinese troops, attempting to consolidate a front between two main routes out of Rangoon, 60 to 80 miles from the abandoned port city of the Irrawaddy delta.

In the Philippines, the United States reported no change in the Bataan peninsula situation—a watchful waiting for the next all-out Japanese attack on General MacArthur's forces.

Japan's Solomon Island move was evidently either a feint to distract attention from establishment of New Guinea bases for the prospective lunge at Australia or actually a thrust toward the New Hebrides and New Zealand along the island chain pointed at the United Nations sea route to Australia, ahead of any direct attempt to invade the continent.

The move was disclosed by Australian air reconnaissance over the Australian-mandated part of the Solomon group. The warship force was sighted three days ago off Kessa, on tiny Buka island, a stepping stone from New Britain to the Solomons. There was no further indication that the Japanese had landed there.

Buka is 180 miles southeast of Japanese-occupied Rabaul, New Britain, and 800 miles northeast of Australia's northeastern extremity, the Cape York peninsula.

Airfield Is Attacked
Australian bombers smashing at the potential island route toward New Zealand attacked the enemy-held airfield at Gasmata on the south coast of New Britain yesterday.

"All our bombs fell in the target area and columns of smoke rose from the ground," a communiqué said. Counter-attacking Japanese fighting planes were beaten off.

The Japanese offensive was crippled to some extent in the sinking or damaging of seven ships by air attack last Tuesday off Salamaua, a Japanese foothold in New Guinea. Closer at home for the enemy, a single United States submarine has picked off four vessels, boosting the 149 the total Japanese ships destroyed or damaged by U. S. forces.

The War Department announced that five Japanese planes were destroyed two days ago by five United States army heavy bombers in a raid on Japanese-held airfields at Salamaua and Lae, both in New Guinea.

All the airfield buildings were destroyed and a harbor pier at Lae was hit directly.

Again Japanese fighters challenged the raiders, but five were (Continued on Page Eight)

Fourteen Officers Will Get Navy Cross for Work at Cavite Base

Washington, March 13 (AP)—Secretary of the Navy Knox has approved award of the navy cross to fourteen officers who distinguished themselves in action during the first Japanese aerial bombardment of the Cavite naval base in the Philippines.

Letters of commendation from the secretary to three civilians who were employed there and also distinguished themselves were announced at the same time. Eight officers were awarded the navy cross for "extraordinary heroism." They include Lieutenant John D. Bulkeley, 43-38-39 Place, Long Island City, New York.

Esposito Brothers Die in Sing Sing

Payroll Robbers Are Taken to Electric Chair in Wheel Chair

Ossining, N. Y., March 13 (AP)—William Esposito, 30, played dead on the cold pavement of a midtown New York street just off Fifth avenue 14 months ago and then arose to shoot and kill Patrolman Edward F. Maher, 53, but today he was really dead—killed in Sing Sing Prison's electric chair just five minutes after his brother Anthony, 37.

The brothers, who looked totally unlike in normal life, could hardly have been told apart as they were brought into the death chamber last night in wheel chairs. Virtually 10 months of lying in bed, abstaining from all food except that which was fed them forcibly, had reduced the "Mad Dog Killers" to skin and bone.

The brothers ran wild, blazing away with guns at mid-day on January 14, 1941.

In an attempt to rob Alfred Klausman, 55, of a $349 payroll of the linen firm of which he was manager, they shot and killed him in the elevator of a midtown building. The brothers then separated. William commandeered a taxi cab, wounded the driver, dashed across crowded Fifth avenue into a side street and was wounded by Patrolman Maher.

His leg wound was superficial, and while his brother was being arrested, he waited for Maher to lean over him then raised on one elbow and shot the officer.

Last night neither of the brothers accepted the Rev. Bernard Martin's offer of spiritual solace before he died. The Roman Catholic chaplain, however, carrying a prayer book, walked into the death chamber ahead of Anthony—the first man in the history of the prison ever to have to be brought in in a wheel chair.

From the start, the brothers, their family and their lawyer contended they were insane. Throughout their trial they feigned insanity, but a psychiatric commission appointed by Governor Lehman ruled they were "hysterical with fear," but legally sane.

Anthony seemed perfectly relaxed as he entered the death chamber, seemingly unaware of his fate, but his jaw dropped as the guards strapped him in the chair.

William's eyes were wide open as he was wheeled along the hall toward the death chamber, but as he reached its threshold, he shut them quickly and clenched his fists.

In the chair, he gave further evidence that he knew what was about to happen. He drew his lips tight and clenched his fists so that his knuckles stood out like ashen bones.

GARDEN for VICTORY

Grow Vitamins at Your Kitchen Door

Fireside Planning

The arrival of the seed catalog is the first sign of spring for the gardener. Although the garden may be covered with snow, and the soil as immovable as rock, the sun has ceased declining, and every day favors us with a few more minutes of daylight—what better sign of spring?

Success with your Victory Garden will depend in no small part on careful planning. Plan to use your available space to produce fresh vegetables for family use, having the maximum value in nutrition.

These early weeks when inclement weather keeps us indoors are ideal for fireside gardening, or planning for the spring and summer. What mistakes did we make last year? How will we correct them this year? These are the questions we should ask ourselves.

The answers are usually to be found in the seed catalog. Unlike books of a similar purpose in other industries, the garden seed catalog is an educational volume, which contains an almost unlimited fund of information about the heights, colors, growing habits and cultural needs of flowers and vegetables. Some of them are even so complete (they list thousands of varieties) that they are used in agricultural schools as text books.

It is important for you to know, for instance, that a certain variety of zinnia grows 18 inches tall, while another might grow only 6 inches, for in a border planting it would be manifestly bad taste if you confused the two and placed the taller variety in the front row and the shorter one behind it. And most important now, is to determine which of the vitamin-rich protective foods you can grow at home.

The amateur gardener can also find much profit and pleasure these days in reading magazines and books on his hobby, and relating them to problems at home. In connection it is a good idea to get thoughts down on paper, drawing the garden, with fixtures and plantings placed on a scale map. This can be changed as new ideas are found, and by the time planting season rolls around, you will know just where everything should go, will be able to get through the rushed days of spring with a minimum of effort, and have a better looking garden besides.

Orchardists Begin Sugar Bush Tap; Big Year Foreseen

Albany, N. Y., March 13 (AP)—New York's orchardists have begun tapping their sugar bushes for hundreds of thousands of gallons of maple syrup and are anticipating increased profits from this delectable substitute for soon-to-be rationed cane sugar.

Second only to Vermont in its volume of maple products, the state last year tapped 3,080,000 trees which yielded 604,000 gallons of syrup and 50 tons of sugar—about 130,000 gallons and 125 tons below the 1934-39 average, due to poor weather.

The state market bureau predicted today, however, a sharp increase in maple production this year to meet an extended demand for sweeteners other than refined sugars, and forecast an accompanying boost in the wholesale price of syrup from three to five cents.

Bearing that out, one St. Lawrence county farmer reports an offer of $1.65 per gallon for his initial run by a firm that last year paid $1.32. The normal retail price of $2 per gallon for first run syrup is expected to rise to from $2.40 to $2.75.

Success of this year's season, which the state market bureau says may be the biggest in history, depends on the weather. "Good" sugaring weather means thawing days and freezing nights, but no extended freezes to suddenly cut the sap flow—the type farmers have been blessed with the past few weeks.

War Has Affected U.S. Rattan Supply

No More Will Be Made Until End of War

When Singapore fell to the Jap invaders, many Americans learned for the first time how directly such a distant port affected their everyday lives.

For example, most of the rattan used for the sun parlor and porch furniture so popular in the United States comes from the East Indies, Singapore being the shipping point.

When stocks on hand—which are reported to be ample for the coming season—are exhausted, no more rattan furniture will be made until the end of the war.

Proper Sealing Adds to Beauty

No Headaches in Finding Pieces for Small Room

With thousands of defense houses awaiting furnishings and more thousands of small homes built by private capital ready or almost ready for occupancy, the furniture industry is finding that all of the work done in recent years to design and build small-scale furniture is bearing fruit.

Long after the huge rooms which characterized most homes of the past generation were passed—at least in large cities—most furniture continued to be built on the same pattern as before. Bedroom suites were massive affairs... huge, overstuffed pieces were designed for the living room... dining room buffets and servers and cabinets were almost always large. The only small furniture was cheap furniture, usually poorly designed.

The woman moving into a small city apartment or a tiny suburban home in those days was sure to have her troubles before she found furnishings both in the right scale and in good taste. Her protests, however, were up the furniture industry and today workers moving into defense housing units will have much less trouble, as a result, in finding the furnishings they want.

All 18th Century
In styling, there is nothing to choose between the pieces. All are 18th Century, with Honduras swill mahogany fronts and plain mahogany tops and ends. Fronts and tops are of five-piece construction. The finish is a rich reddish brown.

Another help offered by furniture makers to those who live in small homes is the so-called "open stock" suite. Such a suite may have as many as 30 or more pieces, all styled to be used together, and offering a choice not only as to chairs, but also tables, buffets, china cabinets, cupboards, etc. The purchaser thus can select the pieces, whatever they may be, which will best fit into her room.

"One class is the biting insects. These take their food by biting off pieces of the plant with their chewing mouthparts. Damage by these insects, including grasshoppers, grubs, beetles and caterpillars is easily recognized by holes in the leaves or by their ragged appearance."

"The sucking insects have needle like mouthparts that pierce plant tissues. They get nourishment by sucking the sap. They include the tiny, green, lice-like aphids, the leaf-hoppers and thrips."

"Formerly, biting insects were killed by dusting plants with poisons such as lead arsenate, calcium arsenate or Paris Green."

The Rev. and Mrs. Frederick Baker will go to Albany Monday to meet their son, Fred Baker, who will spend a week's leave of absence with them.

WOODSTOCK

Woodstock, March 13—The list of articles being collected in Woodstock by the local salvage department follows: All sorts of iron, brass or other metallic beds or springs. Electric wire of any description. Also electric cords. Old locks and any disused iron or other metallic hardware of windows, doors, etc., metal lamps and lighting fixtures of all models. Old radios, metal furniture and swings. Any old household equipment such as vacuum cleaners, etc. Old iron stoves, or any part of them. Useless fireplace equipment such as grates, poker, andirons. All sorts and lengths of iron pipes, also whatever copper or brass plumbing of no value to the owner. Iron tools of all descriptions that have passed their prime such as shovels, rakes, axe heads, hoes, etc., and, last, but very important—paper, rags and magazines.

Newspapers can be easily stacked. Waste paper such as paper bags, empty cartons, cardboard boxes and corrugated boxes are welcome.

Householders gathering waste paper are asked to open all cardboard boxes and cartons and flatten the waste before delivery.

Those who have cars could help by delivering their salvage in person.

A meeting and re-organization of the Woodstock Craftsmen's Guild was held on Tuesday. It was decided to continue the guild in the same location during the seasons approaching. The opening date has not as yet been decided, but it is probable that it will be immediately after Memorial Day.

Legion Aid Sought In Salvage Work

All Commanders Receive Notice of Campaign

Department Commander Jacob Ark of the New York State American Legion has written to the post commanders of the state and also to each county commander urging them to use the facilities of the Legion to aid in the salvage work of the nation to gather together scrap materials now so badly needed to conserve our necessary war materials.

Mr. Ark, who is a member of the New York State Salvage Committee under the State Council of Defense, has sent the following letter to all post and county commanders urging shortage to contact their local salvage committee and work in the drive to "get in the scrap."

"To Post Commanders: American soldiers and sailors are dying every day because of the old refrain of 'too little and too late' when it comes to ships and planes and tanks and guns. Never in the history of this country has industrial output meant so much for the success of our armed forces. Yet, many open hearth furnaces are blacked out when they should be aglow with their white hot brew with which our boys can average Pearl Harbor. It takes scrap iron to make steel and scrap iron today is truly more precious than gold for there is a nation-wide shortage."

"The American Legion throughout this country has undertaken to help salvage waste paper, old rags, scrap metal and old rubber. America is a rich mine of all these. In dumps and backyards—in attics and cellars—in stores and on farms—millions of tons of materials are now lying idle and useless. We must now work this mine. We must make it produce now—and continue to produce. We must save and salvage and start these materials on their way to make weapons for our fighting men."

"As your department commander, I have been placed on the New York State Salvage Committee. Our officials know the job we can do and are depending upon us. Members of your post can make a full contribution to this all-important part of our struggle. There is a salvage committee in your community. Please contact it at once. It gives the Legion still another opportunity of getting into the fight—by getting in the scrap."

"Our country needs our help—Legionnaires of New York! Let's Go!"

The Real Thing—Again
New York, March 13 (AP)—With tongue in cheek, cafe society listened patiently to Tommy Manville's announcement last February 3 that on April 9, his 48th birthday, he would take his sixth bride. Just to make sure nobody would forget, he reiterated this declaration yesterday with but one slight alteration: Instead of blonde Madge Lowe of Toronto, as scheduled, he is to marry brunette Jean Sutherland, 21, of Romney, W. Va., and this time it's the real thing, he says—again.

Nicaragua—The life expectancy of Nicaraguan governments used to be so short that Americans seldom thought or read about this largest of the Central countries except in terms of revolutions and marine landings. That is no longer true and today Nicaragua is a rapidly growing (population 1,380,000), unified nation, with a democratic constitution based on the United States, rapidly expanding school system, growing aviation, both civilian and military. Her army is small—about 4,000 officers and men plus a trained reserve of the same size—with this novelty: During their three-year enlistment period soldiers are not permitted to vote. The United States' interest in Nicaragua is not only friendly, paternal and economic (we take most of her exports of gold, coffee, bananas, sugar and send her most of her imports of textiles, machinery, chemicals, flour) but a strategic nature. This country holds a three million dollar option on rights for a duplicate of the Panama Canal crossing Nicaragua and her two great lakes—Nicaragua and Managua—and naval bases on Corn Island on the Atlantic coast and Bay of Fonseca on the Pacific. General Anastasio Somoza is the first president elected under the new constitution, for an eight-year term. When Nicaraguans elect their senators for six-year terms and their deputies for four years (in their two house congress) they also select alternates to succeed principles in case of death. In the interests of good neighborhood, English is a compulsory subject in the schools.

girls are being trained in inspection work. One of the advantages pointed out by Dr. Lewis A. Wilson, deputy commissioner of education, in these courses is that the pupils are given training that can be turned to immediate account in the war industries and at the same time their regular high school training is completed, thus preventing interruption of the customary 12-year public school program. The junior training program is under the supervision of the Bureau of Industrial and Technical Education.

South Bend, Ind. (AP)—Because of a shortage of epee blades Notre Dame fencers gave up practice with that weapon this year, yet won every epee match.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Almost a War Tragedy
Wabash, Ind. — Lew Kretzmeier telephoned his laundry to find out why it hadn't brought back his clothes.

The laundry said it had never picked them up. Kretzmeier was puzzled till he happened to see the dirty clothes on his front porch for the laundryman, Boy Scouts had been collecting rags for the war. Hours afterward, after two junkyards had been searched, the laundry turned up in a bale of rags.

Bees Included

Pocatello, Idaho — It took courage, but the rationing board told Kenneth Bradshaw he couldn't have a tire.

"I've got a truckload of bees—and a blowout," he fumed. "If I don't get a tire by morning, those bees will make trouble."

A long distance telephone call to a brother in a nearby city produced a spare that kept the peace in Pocatello.

Same Old Professor

Birmingham, Ala. — A college professor, who writes stories, has had many of them come back but none quite as fast as the latest. He sent it off to New York, confident it would sell. The next day he found the story in his mail box. He had enclosed the manuscript in an envelope intended for use in returning it, in case it didn't click.

Shows His True Colors

Cincinnati — No more snide remarks, please, about the Nazi ancestry of Mrs. Joey Hardin's pet dachshund, "Hansi."

"Hansi" is wearing a blanket. Embroidered thereon are the words "I am an American."

The Reason

Colorado Springs, Colo. — T. M. Whitledge was just medium mad when he saw a flat tire on his automobile. But you should have heard him when he felt inside the casing for the inner tube. It was gone.

More Blackouts Due for Region

Upstate Section to Receive Intermittent Tests

Albany and neighboring communities have been promised more blackouts in the near future by Major J. J. Farrell, deputy director of state civilian defense, in order to test out warning systems. These tests, however, will not be conducted at too frequent intervals, he said.

Major General John F. O'Ryan, head of state civilian defense, will have a probe made to ascertain why Troy's warning center failed to receive the "red" warning signal Wednesday night which resulted in Cohoes, Scotia, Johnsonville, Troy and Watervliet failing to black out.

While Kingston and Ulster county held a successful blackout, this area may expect practice blackouts from time to time too. In Ulster county the only failure to black out on time was at Rosendale and High Falls, where the signal was delayed. These communities held a blackout, slightly delayed, because of the inability of the control center to get in telephone communication with the Rosendale center immediately on receipt of the blackout signal.

Test blackouts are being held for just this kind of difficulty. The local defense council has ironed out the difficulty and future blackouts will undoubtedly go along much more smoothly. Apparently the slip-up was due to a misunderstanding as to the exact duties to be performed on receipt of each signal.

SOUTH RONDOUT

South Rondout, March 13—At the fourth quarterly conference held recently in the Methodist Church, an invitation was extended to the Rev. D. Finley to remain on this charge.

Mr. and Mrs. Mancel and daughter, Gladys, have moved to Newburgh.

Mrs. Lucie Baker and daughter, Janice, Mrs. Mary C. Smith, Mrs. Frieda Renn of Kingston and Mrs. Janet Wesley motored to Saugerties Tuesday evening and attended the meeting of Emmanuel Chapter, O. E. S., honoring the district deputy.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Cole, Miss Anna Cole and Miss Elizabeth Hein motored to Palisades Park, N. J., Sunday, visiting their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. M. Ryan.

John Shultis has returned to Virginia, where he is stationed. Mr. and Mrs. John Shultis were given a skimmington on Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. William Barbieri of Haines Falls were callers at the home of their aunt, Mrs. N. Cole, Tuesday.

Mrs. Charles Wesley and daughter, Lillian, of Port Ewen, called on Mrs. James Wesley Wednesday.

The blackout of Wednesday evening was successful, but a few in the village failed to observe total darkness.

The Misses Margaret McQuade, Bobbie and Nina DeMarco of Schenectady were week-end guests at the home of Miss Adelaide Vetsoskie.

Owls are accounted wise only because their eyes are set to look forward like a man's, giving them a knowing look.

BULLET PAINTED TARGET

Corp. Francis R. Jones (right), of Milwaukee, Wis., points out streaks of color on the white cloth target caused by the painted cartridges of gunners at the Air Corps gunnery school at Harlingen, Texas. Looking on are Sergeant Roy McKinney (left), of Elizabethtown, Tenn., and Corp. John E. Homan (in cockpit of plane), of Binghamton, N. Y. The targets are towed by a plane and fired on by gunners in other planes. One target, the object of 300 shots, bore 287 holes.

Lack of Sleep Causes Accidents

Need for Good Bedding in Wartime Cited

Chicago, March—“Sleep, along with proper food, has proven to be vital in maintaining vim and vigor among civilians so needed today to accomplish the victory program,” according to Frier McCollister, director of merchandising of the National Association of Bedding Manufacturers, Chicago.

“In England these two—food and rest—have been found to be basic needs for defense workers,” Mr. McCollister pointed out. “At the end of World War I, a report of industrial accidents in British munitions plants made to Winston Churchill, then minister of munitions, proved that these accidents were mainly caused by fatigue. During the present war, British health authorities, therefore, are looking out for the workers’ rest.”

Good Bedding Essential
“Proper sleeping equipment,” Mr. McCollister continued, “plays a fundamental part in furnishing this good restful sleep. Many of the materials used in the production of good bedding are now needed in the war program, but the bedding industry believes that all home demands will still be met. Some alternate materials will be necessary, but changes will probably concern styling and choice of colors rather than rest-producing qualities.”

“Our industry is and has been co-operating with the government in every possible way during the present war effort. A majority of companies are busy almost night and day turning out bedding supplies for the country’s armed forces. But recognizing the prime importance of proper rest on the home front, too, bedding makers are determined to continue to provide the public with the present high standard sleeping equipment throughout the emergency.”

Quality Counts!

Good sleep for the entire family deserves a place at the top of every patriotic homemaker’s individual defense program, Mr. McCollister pointed out.

“The best sleep does not necessarily mean many hours of it, for quality is much more important in overcoming fatigue than is quantity,” he declared. “Complete relaxation on a good spring and mattress for a few hours each night counts more than many, many hours on a mattress and spring filled with holes and bumps.”

Elks Nominate Officers For Election March 26

At the annual meeting for nomination of officers for Kingston Lodge, 550, B. P. O. E., held Thursday night, the only office in which a contest at the election to be held March 26 was indicated was that of esteemed lecturing knight, the nominees being Clifton Eckert and William Krum. FOOD TIPS FROM THE COOKBOOKLETS

TIPS ON CAKE BAKING ARE FEATURE OF "FOOD FACTS" COOKBOOKLET

The cook who can turn out successful cakes will have little trouble in establishing a reputation for excellence in food matters. The Kingston Daily Freeman's newest Cookbooklet, "2,000 Useful Facts About Food," has one whole section packed with clever "tricks of the trade." Follow them to get cakes that are uniformly even in texture, captivating in appearance, and luscious to taste!

For instance, what is the importance of shortening in cake baking? The new book will tell such a routine, familiar task that "second best" methods are often used for lack of careful attention to details. You may find it helpful to review the explicit rules for making hot and iced tea and coffee given in this week's Cookbooklet. Tips on pastry and filling may often stand you in good stead on a busy baking day.

The delightful part about this 19th Cookbooklet is that the 2,000 Useful Food Facts it contains can all be used again and again in following out the recipes in the pre-you that if too much shortening is used, your butter cakes may fall or fall apart. On the other hand, if you use too little shortening you may find that your butter cakes have a tough crust or too pale a crust, and that your cake is hard and dry. The use of shortening that is too soft may result in soggy layers at the bottom of a butter cake; while liquid shortening may make the cake coarse grained.

Delicious and delightful, in both taste and appearance, are these beautiful cake delicacies. Special advice on cake baking is given in this week's Cookbooklet.

The use of too much flour may cause both butter cakes and sponge cakes to crack or hump, have a tough crust, and be too dry. All-purpose flour will probably make them both coarse grained. If your oven is overcrowded, the cakes may rise unevenly and burn on the sides.

F.B.I. Detains Mussolini's 'Pal'

Metropolitan Opera Basso Is at Ellis Island

New York, March 13 (AP)—The oft-repeated boast that he was Mussolini's friend has resulted in the seizure of Ezio Pinza, Metropolitan Opera basso for the last 15 years, and his detention on Ellis Island as an enemy alien.

Agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation separated the Italian-born singer, 50, from his American wife, the former Doris Neal Leak of Larchmont Manor, N. Y., yesterday. He now awaits a hearing by a local alien board.

Pinza was understood to have taken out his first American citizenship papers. He had been in poor health at times last month and had to cancel an appearance with Dusolina Giannini in a joint recital at Carnegie Hall.

It was said at the Metropolitan Opera House that Pinza's next scheduled role there was in tomorrow's matinee of "Faust."

Following his appearance in "Faust," Pinza was to have gone on tour with the Opera Company next week. The company has engagements at Baltimore, Boston, Cleveland, Dallas and other cities.

The Justice Department, it was learned, began to show an interest in Pinza about two months ago. As an Italian, an "alien of enemy nationality," he was required to file detailed statements on his traveling plans. The Justice Department was said to have collected 88 signatures from the basso.

These were required since he was scheduled to stop at 22 places during the concert tour and four signatures were required for each leg of the journey.

Pinza married the former Doris Neal Leak on November 28, 1940. A daughter was born to them last September. Pinza, a native of Rome, was educated at the Conservatory of Bologna and he made his debut in Rome in 1919.

To Make A Needle Float

There are two ways to make a needle float on water. The first way is to take an ordinary needle, and put it upon a fork. Slowly lower the fork into a glass of water. The needle will then float just like a piece of straw.

Practice this so that you can lower the needle smoothly into the water. Remember, if water gets into the eye of the needle, it will cause the needle to sink.

Here is the second way: Put a piece of tissue paper in a glass of water. Now lay a needle gently upon the floating paper. The tissue will soon become soaked and will sink to the bottom of the glass, leaving the needle floating on the top. Of the two latter ways is the easier.

The professor was delivering the last lecture of the term.

"The examination papers are now in the hands of the printer," he concluded. "Now is there any question you would like answered?"

Silence prevailed for a moment and then a voice popped up: "Who is the printer?"

On the ninth stroke of the clock Simpson awoke with a start. "Gosh!" he groaned. "What a head I've got. I can't go to the office today."

He reached for the phone and called his boss's private number. "It's no use wrapping things up," he confessed. "Last night I was out with some pals and I'm ashamed to say I overdid it. I wonder if I could take the day off, sir?"

"Well," came the boss's voice over the phone, "I admire your candor, Simpson, and I shall expect you at nine tomorrow. As for the day off, it's yours. Today is Sunday."

Housewife's Lament

I remember, I remember When a dollar bought a lot Of stable goods and groceries, And meat, as like as not.

But, oh, the butcher shops today A dollar merely scores— The only part of beef 'twill buy Is possibly the horns.

Landlady—I'll give you just three days in which to pay your board.

Student—All right, I'll pick the Fourth of July, Christmas, and Easter.

Calls for help seem to indicate that peoples everywhere have assumed "the Lord will provide" and He undoubtedly will.

But the Good Book also tells us that "heaven helps those who help themselves," which somehow or other seems to have been overlooked.

Common sense would seem to dictate that when rulers prepare for war, their peoples individually should prepare for it also, in cooperation with Providence.

At any rate, blaming their in-providence on Providence will not feed or clothe them—they must help themselves, as much as they can. Then the Lord will do His part.

He was very rich, and he spent most of his time trying to impress the people he met with what a fine sort of chap he was.

One day he rushed up to the railway station and threw a $20 bill on the counter.

He—Give me a ticket.

Clerk—Where to?

He—Anywhere, anywhere. I've got business all over the place.

William considered himself rather a "hit" with the girls, but when he spoke to a young lady on the boulevard she was very annoyed.

"I don't know you from Adam," she snapped indignantly.

William smiled in return.

"You ought to," replied the young man "I'm dressed differently."

Army Rules for Use of Airports In Emergencies

Conditions under which commercial airlines may use bases and fields of the army air force as alternate airports when scheduled airline terminals are made unsafe by inclement weather or other emergency causes, were announced today by the War Department.

Authority must be obtained from the commanding officer of the base or field, and a complete flight plan filed with him prior to the time of departure of the aircraft involved.

The commanding officer must be notified immediately upon the decision to use his base or field and advised of the estimated time of arrival of the aircraft.

The pilot of the aircraft must be made familiar, prior to take-off for the scheduled airport, with the communications and radio aids facilities, the air and ground traffic regulations and the general rules and regulations currently in effect at the alternate airport.

The commanding officer of the alternate airport must be notified immediately if the aircraft is landed at the scheduled airport instead of the alternate.

No services or supplies will be furnished except in emergencies.

The federal government will assume no liability or responsibility arising out of the condition of the landing area, radio aids or adjacent establishments; or by the acts of its agents in connection with the control of the flight involved; or in connection with the granting of the right to use an army air force base or field as an alternate airport.

At the same time, the War Department announced that it did not plan to remove scheduled airline transportation to secondary

SHOW BOAT GIRL

By ROBERTA COURTLAND

YESTERDAY: The only break in Melissa Marlowe's lonely life in her grandmother's cabin beside the Mississippi had been the sudden appearance of an exhausted young hunter from New Orleans one day in a storm. Melissa had played and sang for him, and had felt a little romantic about it all. But he left and sent no word, and now her grandmother has died, and one of the neighbors is making her an offer for the cabin.

Chapter Five Big City

MELISSA'S hands clenched tightly in her lap and for a moment she was very still. Three hundred dollars! It was a vast sum! An incredible sum! She'd never had more than ten dollars at one time in her life. With three hundred dollars she could—why, she could go to New Orleans; maybe get a job, singing! She might even—see Randy Hendricks again! She caught her breath at that thought and her face burned with color, while she tried to tell herself she was a fool even to think of Randy because he would not remember her.

Jim, who was studying her anxiously, brought forth from his pocket a baking-powder tin, unscrewed the lid and pulled out the money it held, counting out to her the limp, tired-looking dirty bills. "Me and Sally's been savin' for years to get us a better place," he explained. "And if you want to sell out, Lissy—well, here's the money. Three hundred dollars—and I got a paper here that will make it all legal and binding if you want to sign. Of course, if you don't feel like it's a fair price we can wait till the lights come again and you can ask Cap'n about it—but I think he'd say it was fair."

"Of course it is, Jim," answered Melissa swiftly, her voice shaken a little. "And I'll take it. I don't have to wait for Cap'n's advice." Jim's heavy, friendly face lit up a little and he nodded. "Well, I'm right glad, Lissy. Sally's powerful anxious to get moved. Claims she ain't ever had enough room to plant the kind of flowers she wants, and with your Gran's garden doin' so well—"

Melissa's hand shook a little as she signed her name and accepted the limp, greasy-looking bills that had been buried in that baking-powder tin back of Jim's house for no one knew how many years.

A week later she was in New Orleans.

The moment she stepped from the dirty, plodding little river-steamers that plied between the mouth of the river, down the Gulf, to New Orleans, she knew that her clothes were out of date and "funny-looking," and a vast wave of homesickness so keen as to be almost physical swept over her.

The noise, the confusion, the hubbub about her confused and frightened and bewildered her. The heat was much worse here in these baking streets than back beneath the shade of the friendly live-oaks, with the river-wind touching her cheeks. People stared at her; two girls laughed at her; a man whistled at her with a peculiarly irritating whistle that, although she did not quite understand it, made her face burn.

A taxi-driver stared at her and said tentatively: "Taxi?"

"Yes," said Melissa grimly. "Drive me to the best hotel."

"Hop in, lady," said the taxi-driver.

Expensive Life

SHE huddled in the taxi, watching while the streets rocketed past. She held her breath as her taxi grazed her cars and escaped by an incredible inch. The clamor of the surface-cars, the screech of brakes, the roar of a large city lay upon her like physical blows beating her down.

Where was the thrill, the excitement, the delight she had gleefully expected? Well, she wished that her light feeding the chickens; sitting on the porch with her guitar across her knees, plucking at the strings and singing lazily and peacefully.

"If y' are lady," said the taxi-driver, and the car slid to a stop in front of an imposing-looking building. A doorman swung open the taxi door with a flourish and then looked as though he wished he hadn't when Melissa, in her shabby, home-made blue cotton straw hat that she had ordered from the mail-order catalogue, stepped out. There was a straw suitcase which had belonged to her mother.

She handed the taxi-driver a dollar bill, observing that the fare was sixty cents. The taxi-driver pocketed the bill, touched his cap, said, "Thanks, lady," and went whirling off before she could demand her change.

Inside the hotel the clerk looked at her curiously, hesitated and then said politely, "What can I do for you?"

"I'd like a room, please," said Melissa, and added with unexpected spirit, "A nice one, please."

The clerk's cynical, world-wise eye swept over her as he turned the register about for her and asked tentatively, "With a bath?"

"Certainly with a bath," answered Melissa. The clerk filled in a number after the place where she had written her name and glanced behind her. A grinning bell-hop significantly held up the battered straw suitcase, and the clerk said suavely, "That will be seven dollars a day, Miss Marlowe—in advance."

Melissa was staggered but set her teeth. Seven dollars a day! And back at the cabin she and Gran had lived all month on ten dollars in cash! She fumbled in the ancient leather handbag that had been Gran's.

She laid down some bills on the counter. The clerk said briskly, "Oh, yes, you're planning to be with us a week? That's fine, Miss Marlowe. I hope you will be very comfortable. Boy, take Miss Marlowe to 618."

To Melissa the room was a marvel of beauty and elegance. But she thought that it was costing her seven dollars a day and the memory of what an awful hole that week's rent had made in her fortune was appalling.

She was no fool. She knew that she must get a job and soon; but she knew, too, that first of all she must have clothes, city clothes. She looked lovingly at the hat that had been her "best" (and only!) hat for three years; the dress that Gran's gnarled, rheumatic fingers had made for her; the thick, bright, shiny stockings that had seemed to her so beautiful and for which the mail-order people had charged her forty cents. Her hands shook a little. She reached for the telephone—and then shyness and panic took her.

Would he remember her? Oh, he had to! He must! She couldn't bear it if he didn't! She would call him, she promised herself; but later, after she had made herself over into a city girl. The thought gave her courage to face what lay ahead. She picked up her bag and went out into the glaring sunlight.

New Girl

THE big shops frightened her. She walked and looked in window after window and she even ventured into one of the big department stores. But the well-dressed people, the air of superb assurance that all the salesgirls wore frightened her, and she retreated to the street again.

Finally a small shop in a side-street lured her. She was hot and frightened, and bewildered by now, but desperate. And when a tall, bored-looking blonde girl came toward her, wise blue eyes taking her in from the top of that awful hat—she had a vague idea of just how awful it was, by now—the tips of her scuffed, dusty white canvas shoes, Melissa was ready to burst into tears.

"I want a dress," she said unsteadily. "And a hat—and some shoes—and—things—"

The blonde girl's blue eyes raked her from head to feet and were about to dismiss her with supercilious contempt. And then the too wise blue eyes met the desperate, pleading intensity of frightened, red-brown eyes and for a moment the two girls stared at each other. The blonde girl grinned suddenly—a gay, friendly, heartwarming little grin and she said, unexpectedly kind, "Well, I don't blame you for that—but don't take it so hard, keep—we've got plenty of what you need right here."

"T-t-t-thank you," stammered Melissa, and her chin quivered and tears filled her eyes and she fought desperately not to let them fall.

"Think nothing of it," said the blonde girl cheerfully and turned away, busy herself with a swift, cursory inspection of a rackful of gowns behind her, giving Melissa time to pull herself together before she began displaying the frocks.

An hour later Melissa stared at the girl who looked back at her from the mirror and could not believe that she was really Melissa Marlowe. Her frock of cool, jade-green linen was severely simple, and therefore very smart. It revealed that her figure was really too good, and it lent magic to the copper-red masses of her hair and her pale-gold, sun-tanned skin. There was a cool white hat, cool white gloves, a flat white linen bag, brown and white pumps on her slender feet, and beige-colored chiffon stockings to caress her legs.

The blonde looked at her and grinned, nodding a little. "Not bad, keep, not bad at all!" she said cheerfully, and by the tips of her fingers lifted the blue cotton dress and asked, "What'll I do with this?"

"No," said Melissa swiftly, and caught the dress. "My grandmother made it for me—it's the last thing she ever made me, but you can burn the other things, please."

The blonde nodded in swift understanding, and her hands were even gentle as she folded the dejected blue cotton neatly into a box.

There were other clothes, and when the blonde added up the amount and told her, Melissa caught her breath.

Defense Houses Will Be Equipped

Washington Conference Pledges Cooperation

Washington, March 13—When America's war workers, moving into the new homes built for them by the government and by private industry, start to furnish their new abodes, they will find near-by retail home furnishing merchants ready to serve them.

That was the pledge of home furnishings manufacturers and dealers made to government officials at a conference called here last month to tackle the tremendous job of insuring that the necessary furniture, floor coverings, bedding, etc., needed to turn defense houses into homes, is available when it is needed where it is needed—in the right styles and at the right prices.

Speed Is Keynote

The need for speed was a keynote of the conference. Of the 159,474 dwelling units assigned for construction, more than 50,000 are already occupied or available for occupancy, it was reported. Most of these homes have been furnished by local dealers with merchandise in stock and, although it was emphasized that considerable furniture suitable for the new, small homes is on retail floors now, it was admitted that production must be stepped up if the industry is to keep pace with the federal building program.

Defense houses are rented to their tenants with stove and refrigerator included. Other home equipment must be provided by the occupants. While most workers bring some furnishings with them when moving to a new location, experience has shown that in almost all cases additional items must be purchased.

Among the advice given to furniture manufacturers was to cut down the length of drawers, because the living room of a defense home contains only 160 square feet of space.

Trim down the customary dimensions of breakfast sets, which must fit into tiny alcoves, all requiring a smaller-than-average table.

Provide upholstered living room chairs which are comfortable, but which do not require too much floor space.

Add to the height of chifoniers what must be taken from width and depth.

Experiment at making more dual purpose furniture, which will serve many needs while requiring little floor space, but keep such furniture practical. No gadgets wanted!

Design specifically for defense houses additional small-scale furniture.

60% Have Two Bedrooms

In addition to living room and dining alcove, 15% of the new defense houses have one bedroom, 60% two bedrooms, and 25% three or more. The first bedroom usually contains 120 square feet of space and the second and third, when included, have 100 square feet and 70 square feet, respectively. Obviously, furnishings for these rooms must be small in scale to be correctly proportioned to their surroundings.

Although it was expected that financing would be a major problem to be solved in connection with the furnishings of defense houses, furniture dealers have reported little difficulty thus far. "Regulation W," the act governing the granting of consumer credit, requires a down payment of 10%, with the balance paid out in 18 months, for furniture. On appliances, the requirements are higher, but this has caused no trouble as the major appliances are provided with the house.

According to word from the various furniture centers, furnishings especially designed for small homes in general, and defense housing in particular, will be featured by most manufacturers at the spring wholesale markets, and by this summer dealers will be able to provide the right kind of merchandise in greater volume and variety than is possible now.

Committees Appointed

Committees of the National Retail Furniture Association and of the two major associations of furniture manufacturers, appointed immediately after the Washington conference, are already at work on various phases of the problems involved, it has been announced.

"The demand is not for fancy, luxurious or elaborate furnishings," Sherwood L. Reeder, assistant administrator, USHA, summed up. "Occupants of defense houses are plain people—the backbone of the nation. The need is for plain, simple, sturdy designs that will fit into modest surroundings."

That's the sort of furniture, it was promised, which will be provided.

Victory Garden Program

Port Ewen, March 13—A nationwide "Victory Garden" program has been launched. Edmund R. Bower, Ulster County 4-H Club agent, is co-ordinator for Ulster county. Samuel P. Tinney has been appointed chairman for the Town of Esopus. Food will win the war and write the peace. This means general farming as well as home gardens. More and better gardens with food preserved or stored for next winter, may be a big factor in morale and general health during the strenuous days ahead.

Co-chairmen have been appointed for different districts in the Town of Esopus, names of whom will be announced in the near future. Plans are underway for a mass meeting the date and place to be announced shortly. A large attendance is hoped for. A county official will be present to explain and discuss the Victory Garden program. We on the home front can render a patriotic service to our country and also to our boys on the firing line by doing our part.

Observation Post Activity

Port Ewen, March 13—The following men served at the St. Remy Ground Observation Post on Wednesday, March 11: Joe Costello, F. Dempsey, Paul Beaver, George Auringer, John Reynolds, Robert Fairbrother, Robert Henry, Benjamin Henry, Sr., Louis Conn, Lester Ferguson, Martin Nilan, and B. Coniglio. More men are needed, particularly from 8 a. m. to 12 noon, 12 noon to 4 p. m., 4 p. m. to 8 p. m. and 12 midnight to 4 a. m. Anyone willing to serve is asked to notify John Reynolds or Robert Fairbrother.

Pythian Sisters Party

At the conclusion of the business session of Hope Temple, No. 80, Pythian Sisters, Wednesday evening the 19th anniversary of the instituting of the Temple, March 15, 1923 was celebrated. A pot luck dinner was served at a long table, the centerpiece being a cake decorated in the Temple colors and with lighted candles. However these had to be quickly extinguished due to the air raid alarm. At the "all clear" signal the dinner was resumed and at its close another large decorated cake was placed in front of the Most Excellent Chief Lillian Mable in honor of her birthday the next day. Amid congratulations and good wishes, a shower of gifts was presented to Mrs. Mable, most unique perhaps being a replica, both useful and decorative of the M. of R. and C. Members attending from Kingston were Memes Lyman Ellsworth, Guy Crosby, Paul Barnum, Pearl Siegal, and Mrs. Lena Langford of Saugerties.

Sunday Evening Service

Port Ewen, March 13—The Union Lenten Sunday Evening Service will be held this week at 8 o'clock in the Methodist Church House. The service will be under the direction of the Epworth League. The Rev. U. S. Housewife To Guard Against Price Increases

By PAUL GESNER and WILLIAM PINKERTON

Washington, March 13 (Wide World)—The American housewife, a skilled judge of price and quality "downtown" or at the corner grocery, has been made informal policeman to guard against the sharp price increases most feared by government economists.

Depending on the housewife's long training at bargain hunting to check price increases in retail stores, the Office of Price Administration is limiting its price freezing largely to the wholesale prices of goods.

Not all household goods, by any means, are covered by these orders. But Price Administrator Leon Henderson has thrown a ceiling over the prices which manufacturers or wholesalers may charge for such things as cigarettes, nylon hose, tea, pork products, bed linen, radios and rugs and carpets. Other items will be covered from time to time as the threat of price increase appears.

Excepting sugar, canned fruits and vegetables are the first dinner table necessities to come under a price ban. Noting that the average price which canners charged for their fruits and vegetables had increased 20 per cent since last August while retail prices had increased 10 per cent—Henderson ordered that prices charged by canners and wholesalers should not rise above their end-of-February level.

Except for some "slight increases" to cover the difference between what a grocer paid for goods now on his shelf and the price at the end of February, Henderson argued that there was no reason for retail prices of affected canned goods to rise further.

Canned fruits covered by the order included: Apples, apple sauce, apricots, cherries, fruit cocktail, fruit salad, peaches, pears, pineapples and plums.

Vegetables covered are: Asparagus, beans (all dried varieties, lima and green and wax snap beans), beets, carrots, corn, peas, pumpkins, sauerkraut, spinach, sweet potatoes, tomatoes, tomato catsup and tomato juice.

Henderson placed responsibility for keeping retail prices on an even keel on the shoulders of the retailers themselves. While Henderson's scouts presumably will keep an eye on the canned goods price-tags in grocery stores, the housewife is able to judge for herself whether her grocer's future prices are in line.

Henderson made it clear that, if retailers fail to keep their canned goods prices right, the O. P. A. will take steps to control prices in the retail stores.

The same kind of buyer-policing which must rule the canned-goods problem was suggested by Henderson specifically for rubber goods. He urged buyers to check profiteering by watching prices and refusing to buy where prices increased excessively.

Although great quantities of canned goods are needed to feed our enlarged army and navy, and to feed the fighters of other United Nations, O. P. A. officials said there still are enough canned goods to provide for "reasonable consumer needs."

One reason for the price fixing order on canned goods, it was explained, was that increases in their prices had frightened some housewives—and some wholesalers and retailers—into stocking up unnecessarily.

Such hoarding sometimes starts off the vicious scarcity cycle: The cycle which runs—buying rush—price increases—more buying rush—more price increase—sold out!

Duke of Atholl Is Dropping His Jobs

London, March 13 (Wide World)—The only man in Britain who has the right to maintain his own private army has been doing regular turns as a home guard sentry at Whitehall but has decided to relinquish several of his fanciest military titles.

This was announced in the official gazette without giving a reason for the decision.

The 70-year-old Duke of Atholl is dropping his jobs as colonel and commandant of the royal artillery, honorary colonel of the Black Watch Regiment and honorary colonel of the Camerons. He retains, however, 19 meritorious titles.

All able bodied men of the duke's own army rush to join up with Britain's other fighting men when the nation goes to war but in peacetime his 200 soldiers are mobilized once a year for the Atholl gathering.

The right to maintain an army was conferred in 1845 by Queen Victoria. The duke would be the ruler of the Isle of Man if an ancestor had not sold that privilege to the crown a couple of hundred years ago.

Judge Goddard Sentences Seven Spies to Total of 117 Years for Their Offenses

New York, March 13 (AP)—Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard today sentenced seven persons—defendants in the nation's first spy trial since the United States entered the war—to a total of 117 years in prison for espionage conspiracy.

Three were given 20 years' imprisonment each; three others, including a woman, 15 years each, and one 12 years.

Judge Goddard, in passing sentence, told the defendants he was "not only punishing you for your treachery," but "warning others like you that such acts will not be tolerated."

The illegal activities occurred before the United States entered the war—otherwise the defendants would have been subjected to the death penalty.

Those sentenced to 20 years—the maximum possible penalty—were:

Kurt Frederick Ludwig, 36, native of Fremont, O., called by the government the "brains of the ring."

Kene C. Froelich, 30, former drafted soldier stationed at Governors Island here, headquarters of the first army, accused of observing the names of departing ships and transmitting them to German submarines.

Paul T. Borchardt, 56, former German army major.

Those given 15 years:

Mrs. Helen Pauline Mayer, 26, American-born housewife, accused of mailing letters in secret writing to German agents transmitting American military information.

Karl Victor Mueller, 36, German-born naturalized American, a former machinist in a defense plant.

Hans Helmut Pagel, 20, machinist, who pleaded guilty to the indictment while the trial was in progress.

The defendant drawing a 12-year-sentence was Frederick Edward Schlosser, 19, former leader of a Brooklyn German-American youth movement later consolidated with the German-American Bund.

Two other defendants, who pleaded guilty before trial, will be sentenced later. They were Lucy Boehmler, 18-year-old Long Island high school girl, and Carl Herrman Schroeder, a Miami, Fla., fishing boat captain. Miss Boehmler, who was the government's chief witness, testified during the trial that she found espionage "lots of fun."

None of the defendants showed any emotion. They were led by U. S. marshals through the crowded corridor of the federal building to a ground-floor room of the courthouse. Mrs. Mayer, smiling broadly, was hissed by many of the women who saw her escorted from the courtroom. She smiled back at them.

Coops Catch Fire

Shortly after 8 o'clock this morning a call was received from the Barnes chicken farm at Ruby station that some of the chickens were on fire. Using the county mutual aid system, which has its headquarters in the Central Fire Station, the Glasco fire department was notified and responded. The amount of damage was not ascertained. At noon today another call was received for a grass fire on the Wente property on Cutler Hill at Eddyville.

Experts Speculate on New European War Front

Opening of a possible new European war front was seen by military observers, following news that German and British naval units were operating west of Norway. Dotted line (1) indicates 1,500-mile pathway from British Isles to the North Cape-Murmansk area, menaced at present from the Trondheim base occupied by the Nazis. Axis troops dominate Murmansk, so supplies to Russia now must go to Archangel (2). Success of the suggested offensive would cut off Finland and help Russia, provided the Staraya Russa (3) action of the Reds continues to progress. Shaded area in map is Axis-dominated territory.

Allies Push Hard Against Germans

gaged the R. A. F.'s "medium force" of four and two-engine bombers.

The British called the assault part of the "great spring offensive" launched last week-end to injure Germany at least on a western air front in indirect assistance of the Red Army on her eastern front.

The British admiralty indicated Germany is exerting her full U-boat force in the battle of the Atlantic.

Intelligence from the U-boat prisoners, the admiralty announced, said, showed that in a half-year of action the aggregate success of the trio was the sinking of a merchant ship and the destroyer Stanley, formerly a United States vessel.

Took Quarrel

It took a quarrel among the officers aboard one of the disabled submarines to force the commander to blow her tanks and go to the surface for surrender.

The air ministry said that besides the bombing of Kiel "mines were laid in enemy waters." Other objectives were bombed in northwest Germany.

The ministry acknowledged loss of eight planes but the Germans claimed only three at Kiel.

The Hitler high command credited a submarine in the eastern Mediterranean with sinking a British cruiser of the 7,200-ton Leander class.

Between them, the Italians and Germans claimed hits on five cruisers in the sustained action by Axis air and high command forces.

By the calendar, spring is just a week away. By Adolf Hitler's reckoning, however, no one knows when it will come. Ever since his offensive into Russia stalled and went into reverse the Germans have been talking hopefully and threateningly of spring.

The best the Hitler command could report today was that German troops "in defensive fighting" had defeated "strong enemy forces in counter-attacks" cutting off a Russian group that had penetrated the northern—probably Leningrad—sector of the front, and that the Russians lost 55 tanks in the week ending March 12.

Artillery exchanges, patrol clashes and air action continued to characterize the war in Libya. The British said their field guns destroyed a number of Axis trucks and broke up transport columns in the Libyan desert while the R. A. F. was active again over forward areas.

The Berlin communique indicated reinforcements were being brought up by the British for their imperial forces in eastern Libya, by reporting "successful attacks" on disembarking troops and tent encampments at Tobruk. British airfields in Egypt also were raided and the bombardment of Malta continued, according to Axis announcements.

Ferry Will Resume Trips

Ferry service between Kingston and Rhinebeck, which has been halted during the winter months owing to ice conditions in the Hudson river, will be resumed on Tuesday, March 17, when the ferry Kingston will resume regular trips. The timetable of the ferry will be found elsewhere in the advertising columns.

Japanese Might Lose Shirts Over Australian Threat

ed the thing up for us plainly enough by bombarding our California coast from a submarine.

When we help our good friends the Aussies we are creating a base which will help us defeat the Japanese, and thereby not only protect our west coast and island possessions, but compel the Nipponese to keep the door of the Orient open to our trade.

We are sending technical aid to India, and the reason for that is to bolster the British and Russians by increasing India's war production, and at the same time to create a barrier which will prevent Hitler and the Mikado from consolidating their forces to overrun the whole world.

When we send troops and equipment to Europe and the Middle East we certainly are helping Britain (and Russia and all the rest of our Allies). But it happens that Europe is our first line of defense against Hitler, to keep him from striking at the Western Hemisphere. Should he defeat Russia and Britain, he most certainly would move against us.

So there's no such easy solution of this world upheaval as just to mind our own business and let others take care of themselves. We are our brother's keeper these days and my contacts throughout the country indicate that this is the way the vast majority of Americans want it.

Local Man Is Reported Missing on Big Oil Tanker

John J. Carpato, son of Mrs. Theresa Carpato of 217 East Union street, has been reported missing following the torpedoing of the 6,766-ton Gulf Oil tanker Gulf-trade early Tuesday morning off Barnegat, N. J.

The youth was a member of the crew of the tanker, and his mother this morning received word from the Gulf Oil Co., that her son was numbered among the members of the crew reported missing.

The oil tanker had left Port Arthur, Texas, and was enroute to New York city when attacked by the Axis submarine off the Jersey coast.

shot down and the big bombers escaped unscathed.

The War Department's announcement, paralleling an Australian communique yesterday which credited the Lae-Salamaua attacks to "our fliers," apparently was the second example this week of a delayed statement identifying raiders as United States airmen after the Australians used the indefinite phrase.

The first occasion arose from the sinking or damaging of the seven ships off Salamaua on Tuesday.

An Australian dispatch said that "for reasons known in Washington, the commonwealth air ministry was unable to mention American participation in its communiques."

A newspaper dispatch broadcast from Tokyo declared the Japanese had won "the last strategic point of the northern part of Australia" through their occupation of Salamaua, New Guinea port.

The United States submarine action was the latest of a series of blows against Japanese craft in Asiatic waters.

The navy department announced this operation near Emperor Hirohito's islands late yesterday. The victims were identified as "three enemy freighters and one passenger-cargo ship."

Japan's imperial headquarters said a Japanese destroyer sank a British minesweeper in the course of clearing up operations in the neighborhood of Java, and that Japanese fliers had levied a heavy toll in raids Wednesday upon Port Moresby, capital and chief port of New Guinea.

16 Allied Planes Destroyed

Sixteen allied planes were said to have been destroyed and important military objectives were declared damaged at Port Moresby.

Announcement of the U. S. undersea offensive action—in keeping with President Roosevelt's declaration that "the war can be won only by contact with the enemies and by attack upon them"—was coupled with a report of the destruction of a four-motored Japanese seaplane by U. S. fighting planes defending Midway Island.

Four fighters intercepted two large seaplanes Tuesday near the sun-bleached 850-acre island, 1,200 miles northwest of Honolulu, and shot one of them down, the navy said. The other escaped.

"One of our fighters was damaged and the pilot wounded," the naval communique went on. "He succeeded in returning to his base safely."

Midway, garrisoned by navy men and marines, is a naval air station and Pacific cable post. Breathing spells were indicated in combat of both the southwest Pacific and Burma, while marshaling of manpower and equipment for further tests went on.

Diplomatically, a proposal by Japan, a pagan nation, to establish relations between Tokyo and Vatican City drew a protest from the United States. The state department announced last night it had made representations to the Vatican and a spokesman said the Japanese move was made solely to stir up trouble.

Bovine Prowler Killed

OKNARD, CALIF.—An unidentified corporal, patrolling a deserted stretch of sand dunes near Port Hueneme, heard a noise.

The corporal fired—five times.
Came daylight and an army officer looked up the bookkeeper for the D. McGrath Estate company, owner of one of the state's finest dairy herds.
He had to instruct the clerk on how to file a claim for one white-faced heifer, riddled with five army bullets.

President Studies Wage Control, but Refuses Comment

Washington, March 13 (AP)—The question of wage control as a war measure is under study, President Roosevelt asserted today.

The chief executive declined at a press conference to go into the question of putting a ceiling on wages as an anti-inflation step but he did not disclose that the whole problem was under consideration.

Asked whether he was considering "positive action on wage control," he replied crisply, it is under study.

To another question, whether any progress was being made on controlling inflation, Mr. Roosevelt said, in some ways, yes, and in some ways, no. He placed the action of the House in voting to ban sales of government-owned surplus farm products at below parity prices in the category of those things on what he termed the no side.

Proponents of a wage ceiling have contended it is necessary to cut down purchasing power of individuals if inflation is to be checked, just as it is necessary to control prices.

Mr. Roosevelt was asked whether he had arrived at any opinion on how the Canadian system of wage control might work in this country. He said he did not know and had no news on the matter. This is only one factor of the situation which is under study, he said.

Had Not Participated

While Mrs. Roosevelt had written in her newspaper column of a meeting at the White House at which wage control was discussed, the chief executive said he had not participated in the meeting.

Bi-partisan efforts to limit overtime pay in war industries were pressed in Senate circles today despite opposition from Secretary of Labor Perkins.

Senator Lee (D., Okla.) asked Chairman Nelson of the war production board to recommend legislation on overtime and ways of putting more shifts on the job, while Senator Reed (R., Kan.) urged early action on a measure to increase the work week from 40 to 48 hours before extra pay is allowed. The law now provides for time and a half for work over 40 hours.

Lee wrote Nelson after quoting him as saying that time and a half and double time and reluctance by manufacturers to increase the number of shifts were two problems involved in increasing production.

"These two hindrances, it seems to me, can be removed by proper legislation," Lee told the Senate yesterday, adding he had long advocated relaxation of the 40-hour week.

Secretary Perkins, heard in closed session by the Senate labor committee yesterday on the whole labor and production outlook, was requested to furnish the committee, in writing, her views on the Reed bill and the general strike situation.

Senators said she gave three reasons for opposing any change in the wage-hour law:

1. That the existing law does not prevent anyone from working longer than 40 hours.

2. That any change would not affect organized industries with union contracts calling for overtime, but would affect only unorganized workers who already are working longer hours without bonuses.

3. That overtime pay now amounts to only three per cent of war production payrolls and production might be lowered and morale broken by making workers toil longer hours for the same pay.

Kingston Listed For New Route

ter, East Seneca, Irving, Silver Creek near Buffalo, then south-west to the Pennsylvania border.

Would By-pass City

Construction of a super-highway through the Hudson valley was under discussion some time ago and while no definite route was laid out it was stated that the new "dream highway" probably would run to the west of the present 9-W route and would by-pass the city of Kingston to the west. One scheme advanced at that time was to construct a super-highway probably along the foot of the range of hills south of Kingston on a grade similar to the existing West Shore railroad.

Such a route would call for the by-passing of Kingston to the west and for a new bridge across the Rondout creek in the vicinity of the railroad bridge or above it. The route discussed at that time was to pass around Kingston in a westerly direction and erect a new bridge over the Esopus upstream from the existing Higginsville bridge and then proceed northerly along the route of the old King's Highway and along the Kingston flats following the lowlands and northerly to by-pass Saugerties to the west.

Such a route would be well back from the river and would generally follow the flat country at the foot of the Catskills and on to Albany.

At the time the road was discussed it was pointed out that the new route would be a super-highway to carry express traffic quickly west, by-passing built up centers and providing an express highway to Buffalo. The plans then discussed, and referred to as a "dream" highway of the future, were to make the road a wide route with the lanes divided by safety isles similar to the parkways which have been built on the east side of the Hudson river adjacent to New York city and similar to those which extend easterly through Connecticut, replacing the old Boston Post Road.

Sugar Beet Industry Sees Record Crop for '42 If—

AMERICAN FARMERS, for the first time, are the most important source of supply for American sugar consumers.

By ROBERT GEIGER
Wide World Features

Denver — Water! Plus land. And sturdy seeds. Sunshine on warm, brown earth.

Toil! By man. By beast. Of such stuff is a beet sugar crop made.

Nature promises America a bumper one this year. How much sugar the farmer grows depends upon—

1. Profits offered by other crops.
2. The supply and cost of labor available.

3. Nature making good on her promise of fair weather.

This spring, when America needs a beet crop of record-breaking size to offset reduced sugar imports, conditions probably are as promising as they ever have been for producing more beets than ever before.

At worst, sugarmen expect the crop to exceed the 1,600,000 tons of sugar, raw value, grown in 1941. But, adding up all favorable conditions, they confidently predict 25 per cent more sugar than this may be produced, around 2,000,000 tons for an all-American record.

This sugar will be processed late this year. Coming from factories at the rate of approximately 400,000 bags a day, some of it might be used to ease any critical condition arising late in 1942. Normally the bulk of the crop, however, wouldn't reach market until early 1943.

The American farmer, for the first time, has become the most important single source of supply for American sugar consumers and all restrictions on the size of the crop have been removed.

The 1942 price has been estimated at from $9 to $9.50 a ton, depending upon sugar prices after harvest. The average price of beets in recent years has been from $6.75 to $7 a ton.

The beet industry is composed of 100,000 farmers living in 19 states, mostly western and northwestern. There are 85 sugar processing factories.

Factors that govern overnight increases in planting are these:

1. Labor. Beet sugar leaders say 1942 pre-season surveys indicated labor is available—unless it migrates to other fields.

2. Water. Maximum beet crops require an area which has at least 27 inches of rainfall and a supplemental irrigation supply. Irrigation storage generally is above normal.

3. Seed. America now is independent of foreign seed supplies.

4. Land. Sufficient land, irrigated and otherwise, is available near factories to expand production, experts estimate.

5. Factory capacity. No new factories are planned but the production capacity may be increased simply by extending the length of the operating season.

6. Weather. Sunshine and moisture are vital.

Elk Forget Manners to

Woo My Lady Nicotine

SOUTH BEND, WASH.—Game Protector Josh Allen would be happier if his herd of North River elk hadn't taken up with Lady Nicotine.

Not that he minds their moral delinquency, he said—but they've become a traffic hazard. Allen said that elk now were in the habit of going on to the highway at all hours to "mooch" cigarettes from motorists.

"They don't know any difference between a thrilled tourist and a bored truck driver," Allen said. "I've had to keep busy herding 'em from the highway to let road crews work."

Story of Christ To Be in Movie At Local Church

The sound motion picture of the greatest religious story of all times—"The King of Kings," will be shown to the community at St. John's Episcopal Church, parish hall as a spiritual preparation for Holy Week, from Wednesday, March 18, to Monday, March 23, it was announced today.

Owing to the limited seating capacity several showings will be given according to the following schedule:

Wednesday, March 18—2 to 4 p. m. and 8:30 to 10:30 p. m.

March 19—2 to 4 p. m. and 8 to 10 p. m.

March 20—2 to 4 p. m. and 8 to 10 p. m.

March 21—10-12 a. m.; 2-4 p. m. and 8-10 p. m.

March 22—2-4 p. m. and 8 to 10 p. m.

March 23—10-12 a. m.; 2-4 p. m. and 8-10 p. m.

No tickets are allowed to be sold for this picture. Those attending will be given opportunity, however, to make a silver offering at the close of the film if they are able, which will go to cover the cost of bringing the picture here. Any surplus will go into the visual education fund to provide other religious films for the future. It is requested that people expecting to see the film do so as early in the showing schedule as possible, that there may be none disappointed.

In the eye of the motion picture camera, under the directorship of Cecil B. DeMille, and a cast headed by H. B. Warner, the story of Christ has taken human form.

The "sound" of this motion picture is a musical accompaniment, but none of the characters talk.

Through special arrangement with the King of Kings Committee St. John's Men's Club will present this picture in new fresh prints to the community. It will be shown to full advantage on a 9x12 glass beaded screen.

John Steinbeck's Wife Obtains Her Divorce

Salinas, Calif., March 13 (AP)—Novelist John Steinbeck's 12-year marriage has ended in divorce, with Mrs. Carol Henning Steinbeck blaming "too many women—one in Hollywood, particularly."

Steinbeck's poetess-wife obtained an interlocutory decree here yesterday, charging mental cruelty.

Testifying briefly before Superior Judge H. G. Jorgensen, she told a story of loneliness amid the luxury paid for by the "Grapes of Wrath," Steinbeck's biggest seller.

The court approved a property settlement under which Steinbeck agreed to pay his wife $111,992.10 in cash and more than $100,000 in various bonds and shares.

They were married January 12, 1930, in Los Angeles, and separated April 27, 1941.

The American Red Cross has undertaken to train 100,000 women as a Volunteer Nurses Aid Corps as part of its co-operation in the Civilian Defense program.

Plans Advancing For Big Banquet At Local Y.M.C.A.

Plans are rapidly being completed for the second annual Old Timers' Reunion and Dinner to be held at the Y. M. C. A. on Tuesday evening, March 24. General Chairman Sam Bernstein announced today that letters had been mailed out to many of the former members of the "Y."

"There are many who will undoubtedly be overlooked," said Mr. Bernstein, "but we have tried to mail invitations to every former member whose address it was possible to obtain. If there are any former members who have not received an invitation they are requested to get in touch with me or call the office of the local 'Y' and a reservation will be made for them."

"It is the hope of the committee in charge of the reunion," said Mr. Bernstein, "to get all of the old timers as well as the newer members of the "Y" together that night for an evening of fun and entertainment."

The letter that has been mailed to as many old members as possible reads as follows: "Last year the 'Y' Old Timers' Dinner was so successful that the committee decided to make it an annual event and they have set aside Tuesday evening, March 24 at 6:30 p. m. as the date and time for the reunion and the members of the committee want you to consider this a personal invitation to be with us that night."

"If you are one of the old timers you will perhaps recall Judge Harry Schirick and his violin; Art Davis as the strong man of the 'Y' circus; Gus Bonesteel, camp chef and minstrel star; the old 'Y' Glee Club; the minstrel shows, bean suppers and happy days in camp. Those were great days, so join us as we meet at the festive board for a pleasant evening. If you are a newer member of the 'Y' come out and meet the boys who made history in the 'Y' years ago. The old gang will be waiting to hear from you. Don't disappoint them."

The letter is illustrated with several "pictures" showing Chef Bonesteel preparing to "flip 'em, flop 'em"; Judge Schirick and his violin; one of the plates served at the bean suppers. Who recalls a "thousand on a plate"; and the quartet from the old Glee Club singing "Meet Us at the 'Y' Tonight."

Book Club Studies

Picasso and Art
Tuesday evening, March 10, the Book Club met at the home of Miss Sonya Siller, 200 West Chestnut street.

An enlightening discussion ensued upon the life and works of Picasso which were reviewed by Mrs. Gerald Sumer. Regarding his work, she covered his skill as an artist and his realistic subjects. An animated discussion in which all members took part was held on whether modern and surrealistic art are of sufficient depth and beauty to stand the test of time, the true test of art.

Present at the meeting were President Mrs. Bernard Pauker, Mrs. Harry Fertil, Mrs. Alice Parnett, Mrs. Leon Greenberg, Mrs. Harold Nadel, Mrs. William Dean, Mrs. Gerald Sumer, Mrs. Sidney Lutzin, Mrs. William Chazenoff and Miss Sonya Siller.

The meeting closed with refreshments served by Miss Siller.

Couples Club Hears

Of Panama Canal

The Couples Club of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer held its monthly meeting Wednesday evening, February 11. A covered dish supper was served and the hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Messinger, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Messinger.

Guest speaker for the evening was Mrs. Clyde Wonderly. Having travelled to Panama a few years ago, she gave an interesting and vivid description of the places visited on her journey. As the speaker told of the azure blue waters and the coral reefs, green vegetation and tropical forests it furnished a colorful and romantic background for the imaginary visit to the tropical lands of Haiti, Colon, Cristobal and Panama.

Mrs. Wonderly took a trip across the Panama Canal by train but it can be made by ship or plane. She stated that the operation of the Panama Canal locks were indeed a thrilling experience to watch. Passing through the canal is impressive because of the absence of noise and commotion. Gatun Lake, which feeds the canal, is one of the largest artificial bodies of water in the world. Before the canal was built this lake was dense tropical jungle land. On entering Gatun Locks, ships are lifted 85 feet above sea level to the level of Gatun Lake.

Panama is a modern city with schools, hospitals, churches and clubs. The frame houses are built on stilts, but the more modern ones are constructed of cement. They have great market places where all kinds of native fruits and vegetables are sold. Panama is also a scene of old historic ruins which are now covered with a growth of vegetation. Mrs. Wonderly showed pictures at the close of her talk.

The meeting ended with a short business session.

Annual Fashion Show Is Presented

The annual fashion show given by the Women's Club of the Y. W. C. A. drew a large audience yesterday afternoon to the Governor Clinton Hotel club lounge, the sun parlor and the crystal room and gave close attention to the mannequins as they passed through in their colorful outfits.

Sportswear with detachable skirts, suits, sport coats, slacks, dress coats, afternoon dresses, hostess gowns, lounging pajamas, evening gowns with bright accessories were modeled. The final number was the dramatic entrance of the bridal party in a military wedding.

Bernard Goldman acting as commentator, said that this year clothes would fit the figure and not exaggerate it. Shoulders will be broad and padded but normal. The long slim silhouette will be emphasized with skirt fullness. Afternoon dresses will appear to be straight-hanging on the sides but will be tubular in effect with fullness provided by pleats and flares.

Armholes are lower with fullness across the chest. Colors are more pleasing to the eye than seasons before and color combinations are pretty rather than vivid or dramatic. The necklines will be optional and there will be greater diversity in clothes than ever before. Almost all styles of sport, afternoon and evening wear, will be flattering to the figure.

In the town coat, navy blue predominates and fashions are similar to those shown in 1910 to 1914 and during the last war.

Children's styles modeled by Barbara Kelly, Midgie Clayton and Cynthia Haver were washable chambrays, chintzes shown in e-ton styles and mother and daughter combinations.

Adult models were Mrs. Edward Remmert, Mrs. E. C. Burnett, Mrs.

Harold Clayton, Mrs. Theodor Deming, Mrs. N. LeVan Haver, Mrs. C. A. Cahalen, Mrs. Burton Haver, Mrs. John Kelly, Mrs. Elvira Short and Miss Mae Stoutenburg of Kingston drove to the home of Mrs. W. R. Snyder in High Woods for luncheon in honor of the birthday of Mrs. Snyder and Mrs. O'Connor.

Will Solicit Funds

A campaign for funds to help supply thousands of personal comfort kits which have been requested by commanding officers of the men of naval forces of the United States, was announced today by Miss B. Eleanor Easton, chairman of the Ulster county branch of Bundles for America, Inc. at 302 Fair street.

Residents of the community will be invited to subscribe for at least one kit, the cost of which is $1, or for as many more as they may wish to contribute. The kits are described by commanding officers as of great help in maintaining morale which is directly associated with a good appearance.

More than 100,000 of these kits have been requested from Bundles for America by commanders and supply officers of the navy. The Great Lakes Naval Training Station at Chicago has asked for 5,000 a month for a year. Admirals along the Atlantic seaboard have indicated that their supply depots use unlimited quantities of them. On the Pacific coast, warehouses have been assigned to Bundles for America, by naval commanders where supplies of comfort kits and other articles may be sent by quick distribution to their men.

"We shall send these kits to nearby station where requested first and the balance will go to the central warehouse in New York city to be sent to naval stations for distribution through regular channels," said Miss Easton. At many points supply officers are arranging special centers for the handling of these comfort kits.

The kits are in the form of miniature duffel bags, made of heavy navy blue denim. Each contains soap, bakelite razor, blades and shave cream, styptic pencil, tooth brush and tube of paste, pocket comb, nail clipper, box of black shoe polish with polishing cloth, two pairs of strong shoe laces, whisk broom, pencil, aper and a package of candy.

Woman in Rags Tells Police to Get Her Money

New York, March 13 (AP)—Clad in rags, an aged woman recluse whose dingy Harlem flat boasts no furniture other than an ancient coal-burning stove, an iron board and a rickety day bed, reported yesterday the theft of $10,000 in cash and bank books for $40,000 in deposits.

She was "Miss Alice Jones," she told skeptical detectives, "about 70 years old," and if they didn't snap to it find the reason why.

On the off-chance, detectives decided to check her story—and a few hours later arrested Stephen J. Hassett, 60-year-old auctioneer, and Frieda Poliner, 56, his bookkeeper, and charged them with burglary in connection with the theft.

Despite her frugal way of life, "Miss Alice Jones, about 70 years old," turned out to be the owner of two apartment houses and a partner of Hassett, in whose auction rooms detectives said they found 14 passbooks on savings banks and an unnotarized will, all in Miss Jones' name.

The will stipulated that Hassett was to receive $15,000 on her death.

Good Taste Today

By Emily Post

(Author of "Etiquette," "The Personality of a House," "The Blue Book of Social Usage," etc.)

IT ALL DEPENDS

Formalities that serve no real purpose have, to a great extent, gone out of use. Therefore, to a reader, who asks whether it is necessary to leave cards when calling on Mr. and Mrs. Stranger who had invited her husband and herself to a tea and cocktail party, because it was given for this reader's out-of-town cousins, the answer of course depends upon whether you at some time are going to invite them to something in return. Otherwise, no one pays a tea-party call. In fact, the hostess is required to return the "visit" of each guest who came to her house.

"A cocktail party has no obligation further than including those to whom you happen to owe return invitations. The reason for leaving cards on Mrs. Stranger is because she is a stranger who invited you on account of her guests who were your relatives."

Wedding at Someone Else's House
Dear Mrs. Post: Mother and Father are coming here where I live, with my sister and brother-in-law, for my wedding. It is easier for them to come here than for us and almost everyone else the family knows well, to go where they live. Mother and Father think they should send the invitations to the church and to the reception. But I think my sister and her husband should be included in some way because the reception is to be given at their house. We are asking everyone to the church and to the reception.

Answer: Invitations to the church should be sent in the names of your parents. The invitations to the reception should announce that it is to take place at your sister's and brother-in-law's house. This invitation is engraved on a card half the size of the once-folded wedding invitations, and reads:

Mr. and Mrs. John Parent request the pleasure of your company on Tuesday the Fifth of August at five o'clock at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. John Brown 10 Elm Street

(Residence, which is ordinarily a pretentious word to use for house, is in the best taste on an engraved wedding form.)

If all who are invited to the church are also invited to the house a simpler and equally correct invitation to the reception can be added to the church invitation, after the name of the church, this way:

X St. Mary's Church and afterward at the reception at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. John Brown 10 Elm Street

Emily Post's booklet, "The Etiquette of Weddings," will answer all the questions about the ceremony and the reception that you have been asking yourself. Normal School News

The class in aeronautical meteorology is well started at the State Normal School, New Paltz. This course is given by Newton H. Reid of the Reid School of Aeronautics, New Hackensack, and is part of the civilian pilot training program.

Mr. Reid attended Washington University of St. Louis and is a graduate of Parks Air College of East St. Louis.

Lectures are given Monday, Wednesday and Thursday from 7:30 to 9:30, and the total course offers 72 hours of ground training and 36 to 45 hours of flight training.

Instruction is open to young men between the ages of 18 and 26, who are American citizens and have had one year or more of college work or its equivalent. The course is offered without cost to the trainees and will be completed in June. A few more from this section of the Hudson valley might be accepted in the course.

Those interested should contact

L. D. Campbell, C. P. T. co-ordinator, State Normal School, New Paltz.

Normal school students taking the course are: William Burns of North Tarrytown, William Chase, formerly of Rosendale, George Maybury of Newburgh, William Holecck of Bellport, Wesley Long of Mount Vernon, Francis Mulroy of Wappingers Falls, Herman Thoben of New Paltz, and John H. Eagen of Wappingers Falls is one of the members of the class who is not a normal school student.

Mr. Reid has also given three similar courses at Bard College and is at present giving a class at Vassar.

When selecting a baking dish remember that foods cook in less time placed in a shallow wide dish than when placed in a deep narrow topped utensil. So use the shallow kind for foods requiring less cooking time, such as potatoes au gratin, escalloped corn and other dishes having cooked foods in them. The deep type is advised for escalloped oysters, escalloped potatoes and stews.

Mangrum and Little Fight To Hold Lead in Golf Play

11 Other Top Notch Pros in Striking Distance of Seminole Tourney at Palm Beach

Palm Beach, Fla., March 13 (AP)—Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago and Lawson Little of San Francisco, early leaders in the $4,350 Victory Golf Tournament at the exclusive Seminole Club here, battled under pressure today to stave off the challenges of 11 other top-flight pros who were in easy striking distance at the half-way mark.

Besides the $1,500 offered for the 36-hole medal play competition, the 54 professionals in the field also were shooting today at $1,700 for the first five finishers in a pro-amateur best-ball tournament in which each pro is paired with a club member. The amateur teed off with the pros during today's 18 holes.

Mangrum and Little fired two-under-par 70's to share the 18-hole lead. Six other players—Jimmy Hines of Great Neck, L. E. J. (Dutch) Harrison of Little Rock, Ark., Henry Picard of Oklahoma City, Harry Cooper of Minneapolis, Lester Kennedy of Lynn, Mass., and Gene Sarazen of Brookfield, Center, Conn.—were tied with 71's. Bracketed at 72 were Jack Groat of Pittsford, Pa., Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., Jimmy Fierrier of Chicago, Jimmy Thomson of Chicopee, Mass., and Sam Byrd of Philadelphia.

The pro-amateur—in which club members bid for pro partners to make up the famous Calcutta pool—found Mangrum paired with poloist Michael G. Phipps and Little with Charles C. McAdam of Greenwich, Conn.

Edward F. Hutton of New York, who teamed with Tony Penna to tie Byron Nelson and Findlay S. Douglas for first place last year, was paired today with Thomson. Other teams included Harold S. Vanderbilt and Tony Manero of Salem, Mass., Author Charles Francis Coe and Picard, and Thomas M. Carnegie of New York and Sarazen.

The tournament was open to the public for the first time and a gallery of several thousand turned out for the first day's play. Gate receipts were distributed to local charities, and all prizes offered were in defense bonds.

Thirty-five victories were in the National League and 36 in the minors. The five are Ernie White, Howard Pollet, Max Lanier, Clyde Shoun and Harry Brecheen.

Idea of Conflict

Daytona Beach, Fla.—Manager Leo Durocher of the Dodgers has a neat method of making his infielders run during workouts by hitting slow rollers, first to one side and then the other. But First Baseman Les Burge has his own system of combating Durocher's game. Fielding each ball, he stuffs it into his shirt instead of throwing it back.

Keller Is in Camp

St. Petersburg, Fla.—Charley Keller, whose skin is naturally dark, turned up at the New York Yankee training camp looking like a paleface among the tanned athletes. Keller said he felt fine after a winter of idling, placed his weight at around 180, and added that the left ankle which bothered him last year had completely healed.

PICKING OFF THE SPARES—4 SIXTIES

Sampson Gets 277 P. O. Clerks Trim Single in League, Kingston Carriers Ties Broskie High In Bowling Match

Nekos Kegler Also Slams 644 Triple; Ferraro With 463 Triple; Davis Picks Up 649 Total for Adirondacks

In the Central Major Bowling League at the Central Recreation alleys last night Gil Sampson, leadoff kegler with Nekos, tied the high single record of the league when he pounded out a sensational 277 game. Sampson's score ties the mark held by Harold Broskie.

Sampson was tapped in the opening frame and then reeled off nine straight strikes. With 290 "in the wood," Gil came up with a 4-7 setup. Needing the spare for a new record he picked the seven off the four to tie Broskie's mark.

Not only did Sampson tie the league record last night with his terrific game but also posted the highest triple that he's ever hit in the loop. He had a 644 triple on other scores of 190 and 177.

With Sampson showing signs of emerging further from his slump on the alleys, Nekos won two games from the Pepsis. Nekos had a 2880 series. Broskie, who watched his record being tied, led the losers with a 245 single and a 598 three game total.

Ferraro Hits 649

Fresh from his spectacular bowling in the Newburgh City Tournament held in Middletown recently, Johnny Ferraro, anchor for the Adirondacks, pounded out the highest triple last night with his 649 total. Johnny had scores of 213, 199 and 237. Despite Ferraro's top-notch kepling, the Adirondacks lost three games to Mickey's who were paced by Johnny "Red" Sangi and Herb Van Dusen who reeled off triples of 583 apiece.

Al Kieffer blasted a 249 single and a 623 triple to pace the Joneses to two victories over the Terriers. Randy Kelder cracked the highest triple in the match with 633 on scores of 199, 212 and 222. Bill Brizee, Charles Tiano and Johnny Swint sparked the losers. Brizee had a 236 single.

Al Goldman's 212 single game was the highest hit in the Steins-Hynes match with the former team winning all three games. Goldman finished with a 538 triple. Larry Petersen, Sr., posted a 566. His high was 210.

Summer Job

Philadelphia (AP)—Jim Castiglia, Philadelphia Eagles fullback, will serve as batting practice and bullpen catcher for the Athletics this season.

Wiltwyck League Notes

In the Wiltwyck Bowling League at the Central Rec alleys Thursday night Don Kelly, anchor for the A. & P. keggers, rapped out the highest single score of the night with a 252 to pace his teammates to three straight triumphs over the Trailways. Kelly finished with a 566 triple.

With Kelly taking the high single honors, Hornbeck of Minasiens polished the maples for the No. 1 triple score with his enviable 588. His high game was 214 helped along with 184 and 190.

Surbeck of Fishers collected 576 as that club won two from the Detroit. Surbeck had other scores of 185 and 166. Fahey of Fishers had 550.

Morgan Socials Win

The Morgan Social Club bowlers took Works into camp with three straight triumphs last night with Bill Thomas, leadoff, who crashed out a high 550 triple in the match as well as the No. 1 single with his 222, leading the list. Thomas posted other scores of 161 and 167.

Johnny Zeeh also helped the cause with 525. Phil Masters had a 519 while M. Arlensky posted 515.

Telcos won three games from the Generals on forfeit. The Linens defeated the I. L. G. W. U. in two games. Merl Auchmoody of the losers had the highest triple with 552. R. Radel's 212 single was high in the match.

Boxscores of the games will be found in the regular bowling columns.

Local Sharpshooter Tops in Field Goals With 57 in 12 Contests; Gets 25 Fouls

Although Kingston High School's basketball team didn't win either half of the DUSO League during the recent season, one of its players really achieved his goal. He was Rod Sagendorf, brilliant forward, who led the league in scoring with a total of 139 points in 12 games.

ROD SAGENDORF
Sagendorf scored 57 fields and 25 fouls for his grand total and had an average of 12 points per game. Included in Sagendorf's total are the 16 points he made in the Newburgh "unofficial" game here.

Another of the Maroon and White warriors, George "Zeke" Zelle, who was making his first start as a varsity competitor this year, finished seventh in the list with a total of 92. Middletown, winner of both halves, is represented in 10th place by Frank Bellotto, who had an 84-point total. Tony Capozella, also of Middletown, had 80 for 11th place.

Next to Sagendorf is Johnny Dillon of Newburgh with a total of 106. Sagendorf's 57 fields topped the list and the young local sharpshooter was second in the four shooting with 25 points to "Red" Kelly's 30.

Kingston Affected By Lehman Veto Of Riley Measure

Governor Lehman last week vetoed the Riley bill which would have authorized the state to construct arterial highways through third-class cities, including Kingston.

In commenting on the veto, Senator James W. Riley of Olean, sponsor of the measure, said: "I was sorry and disappointed to see the governor deny the relief to the 47 cities which this measure would have provided. Highways through certain cities in my estimation are properly a state charge. At the present time the state constructs arterial highways running through villages and my bill would have extended this practice to include small cities with a population of 50,000 or less."

"Real estate taxpayers must now shoulder the burden of constructing and maintaining through highways in these cities."

"The state collected in the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1941, $41,770,216 from the motor vehicle tax and $65,959,947 from the motor fuel tax. This represents a total of $107,730,163 which the state collected from the motor vehicle tax. From that huge sum it seems to me the state could assume the cost of main highways through small cities thereby relieving local taxpayers from this unjust burden."

"I am sure that many thousands of residents of the cities affected, whether they are Democrats or Republicans, are disappointed in the governor's action. The bill, as passed by both houses of the legislature, would have become effective only after the termination of the war emergency when many thousands of men will be released from the armed forces and defense industries. Had the governor signed my bill, it would have provided a backlog of employment in all those cities."

The bill affected other cities as follows:

Amsterdam, Auburn, Batavia, Beacon, Canandaigua, Cohoes, Corning, Cortland, Dunkirk, Elmira, Fulton, Geneva, Glen Cove, Glens Falls, Gloversville, Hornell, Hudson, Ithaca, Jamestown, Johnstown, Lackawanna, Little Falls, Lockport.

Long Beach, Mechanicville, Middletown, Newburgh, North Tonawanda, Norwich, Ogdensburg, Olean, Oneida, Oswego, Plattsburgh, Port Jervis, Poughkeepsie, Rensselaer, Rome, Salamanca, Saratoga Springs, Sherrill, Tonawanda, Watertown, Watervliet and White Plains.

Becomes 'Attack' Plant

Bristol, Pa., March 13 (AP)—Fleetwings, Inc., aeronautical manufacturers, today removed itself from the "defense" industry as painters took the words out of factory signs and inserted "attack plant." Company President Frank De Ganahl said, "Attack is the order of the day, not defense. We are attacking production more vigorously each day so that our armed forces can attack the enemy soon and decisively."

Baseball Had Its Merry Moments When Westlake Twins Were Around

By HARRISON B. HUMPHRIES

Wide World Features

Bethesda, O.—Toast of the minor leagues half a century ago, George and Bob Westlake, one of organized baseball's few twin-brother combinations, celebrate their 76th birthday March 24.

George makes his home with a daughter here, while brother Bob is a resident of Fairview, W. Va. The Westlake twins looked so much alike their managers couldn't tell them apart.

The brothers, natives of nearby Bellaire on the Ohio-West Virginia border, began their baseball careers with the New Cumberland, W. Va., Blues, a top-notch semi-pro outfit.

Bob, a catcher, signed up with Steubenville, O., in the old Tri-State league in 1886, before the era of big padded mitts and shin guards.

George worked in the Bellaire roundhouse and his mother cautioned Bob to ride on the "opposite side of the train" entering and leaving Bellaire so George wouldn't see him riding the cushions and throw up his steady job for a diamond career.

Trick Didn't Work

The ruse didn't work, however, for the next year George joined the Mansfield, O., club as a third baseman, using his brother's reputation to advantage.

The Mansfield manager, George says, thought he was signing Bob. On the day George arrived for the first game, the Mansfield newspaper announced "Bob Westlake plays with Mansfield."

A headline in the Wheeling (W. Va.) News the same day said "Bob Westlake signs with Wheeling."

The brothers played as teammates for the first time in 1888

General Spalding Heads Army Exchange Service

Brigadier General Isaac Spalding has been appointed chief of the Post Exchange Service under the services of supply organization, the War Department announced today.

Regarded as one of the most important army morale factors, the Post Exchange is to the soldier what the village store is to rural America.

General Spalding, describing his organization, said that its chief aim was to provide every soldier a daily opportunity to buy "must" items such as toilet articles, tobacco and cigarettes. The slogan of the new organization is: "Exchange service to every soldier every day wherever he may be."

In all, General Spalding's organization will have in the neighborhood of 709 officers, scattered all over the country at posts and camps and in central distributing areas. Headquarters are in Washington, D. C.

Much of General Spalding's army service has been in the training and handling of youth. A native of Denton, Texas, he was graduated from the Military Academy in 1912, and was commissioned a second lieutenant in 1917. In January, 1917, he transferred to the field artillery and, after a short tour of duty at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, he was assigned to duty in the training camp at Fort Oglethorpe, Georgia. In April he was assigned to the School of Fire at Fort Sill and in July he went to Camp Jackson, South Carolina, for service in the Field Artillery Replacement Center.

License Deadline Nears

Although dog licenses were due the first of the year there are still a number of dog owners in the city who have neglected to obtain licenses for their dogs. City Clerk Leo Fennelly is now busy preparing a list of delinquent dog owners which will shortly be turned over to city court for action.

with Sandusky in the Ohio State league.

In 1893 they were together with Altoona, Pa., in the Penn State league and in 1896 with Hazleton, Pa., in the same loop.

In 1891 both played with Portland, But Bob was with Portland, Maine, in the Atlantic league, and George with Portland, Ore., in the Pacific Northwest circuit.

Both Gathered Honors

George, with a batting average of .372, was third leading hitter in the Michigan State league while with Manistee in 1890. He was voted the best third baseman in the Penn State league in 1893 at Altoona. At Carbondale in 1854 he was voted most popular player, received a gold-studded cane.

Bob broke the Ohio State league record at Sandusky by catching 75 consecutive games, and cracked a Penn league record by catching 85 straight games for Altoona.

George wound up his professional career at Houston, Texas, in 1904, and Bob, after 19 years of organized ball, played his last game at Waco, Texas, in 1905.

George says his only serious quarrel with Bob occurred when Bob, posing as George, talked George's girl into giving him a ring. George was offended because the girl couldn't tell the brothers apart and romance faded quickly.

Pampered Tummy Gives Army Food Bosses Trouble

Los Angeles, March 13 (AP)—Pampering mamas who developed finicky appetites in their sons have created quite a feeding problem for the army.

Everything will be all right, however, if the soldiers eat what's set before them. They should, even, come out of the service heavier, stronger, maybe a little taller, and with better eyes than when they were inducted.

That's what Mary L. Barber, food consultant to the secretary of war, told the League of Women Voters last night.

She attributed failure of some young men to pass army physical tests to finicky appetites and blamed their mothers for not supplying them with the proper diet.

Seeing that soldiers get their vitamins in food instead of from pills is quite a problem. Many don't drink the half pint of milk offered each man daily, so menus include cheese and, once a week or oftener, ice cream. Powdered milk is used freely in cooking.

Butter is used on as many vegetables as possible because some soldiers eat it sparingly.

Miss Barber's job is to feed millions of men healthfully and adequately on 52 cents a day, meanwhile being careful not to upset civilian food prices or supplies.

As a consequence, menus are staggered throughout the country so that not every camp is serving baked potatoes and roast beef on the same day.

"Before staggering was put into practice, we had camps bidding against each other for food. In one instance, such competition tripled the price of grapefruit and left none for the civilian consumer," she said.

"Staggering makes it possible for us to ship lettuce and tomatoes from Texas to New England. The shipped vegetables cost less than the home grown product there, even if we could get it."

Managellan discovered the Philippine islands in 1521. He also discovered Guam.

Maybe This Budget Thing Has Turned Stale at Albany

Fight Is Comparatively Quiet Say Observers of Many Other Such Battles on Issue

By JOHN H. WIGGINS and WILLIAM W. TYLER

Albany, N. Y., March 13 (AP)—Party contenders for the gubernatorial prize to be awarded next November staggered through a semi-final battle-of-the-budget this week like fighters gone flat-footed and arm-weary.

Legislative ringsiders were treated to little of the oratorical slugging that has marked other preliminaries since 1939; sparring was desultory and much of the time Republicans and Democrats "waltzed" good-naturedly.

There was still possibility of some after-the-bell punching, with Democratic Governor Lehman still to approve or veto budget items added by Republicans while they claimed a $2,230,000 reduction of his recommendation. But Senate and Assembly performances on Tuesday indicated any further exchange will be just so much shadow-boxing.

Maybe it's the war and an aversion to any real partisan squabble that might jeopardize important defense legislation still to be voted. Or maybe, as one legislator put it, "This budget thing has gone stale."

All Made Before

All the arguments have been made before—at least three times. In any event, debaters seemed to address themselves more to the stenographer (for the record) and to the press (for home-town reading) than to galleries listening in.

In the Senate, for instance, Democratic Minority Leader John J. Dunningan, who usually provides much of the fireworks in any controversy, read a "party" statement calling Republican cuts "inconsequential" and giving Governor Lehman all credit for tax reduction. But his reading was a continuous monotone.

Republican Majority Leader Joe R. Hanley snapped back that G.O.P. budget slashes in other years "made possible" the income tax reduction and that, temporarily, ended argument. Democrats and Republicans joined in approving the budget.

Temper of the debate also was reflected in the Assembly where Majority Leader Irving M. Ives made a similar answer to tax-cut credit claims by Democratic Chief-tain Irwin Steingut. Reminded of "our years of Republican economy" by Ives, Steingut replied laughingly: "I can only agree 30 per cent on that."

Voting on most of the budget measures, usually divided along strictly party lines, was unanimous in both houses. One member of the Assembly Democratic minority cast his vote with the assertion "Might as well go along, we can't do anything about it."

Divineites Buy Hotel

The Brigantine Hotel near Atlantic City, N. J., has been purchased by 87 followers of Father Divine, negro cult leader who once was centering his activities in Ulster county. The Brigantine was bought for $70,000 cash. Father Divine's attorney said he would have nothing to do with ownership or management of the property but would dedicate the brick structure this spring and the name will be changed to the Evangelical Model Hotel and Summer Resort. It stands in the island community of Brigantine.

The Navy's women nurses are not allowed in combat zones but are replaced by male nurses trained by them.

Lamouree Gives Verdict in Death Of Mary C. Gallo

Mrs. Mary Concetta Gallo of East Kingston, who was found dead on Thursday morning, died of coronary thrombosis, according to the autopsy he ordered. The autopsy was performed by Dr. J. S. Taylor of this city and Dr. Lester Sinking of Saugerties.

Mrs. Gallo, who was the widow of Francesco Gallo, is survived by the following children: John Tiano, Salvatore Gallo, Mrs. John Mitchell, Mrs. John Guido, Mrs. Earl Mitchell, Mrs. Mary Lindhurst and Mrs. Anna Carro.

Funeral services will be held from the late home on Monday morning at 9 o'clock and at 9:30 o'clock from St. Colman's Church, East Kingston, where a requiem high Mass will be offered with burial in St. Mary's cemetery, this city.

Mrs. Gallo on Wednesday afternoon had gone to the grocery store in East Kingston and was on her way to her home when stricken.

Local Death Record

The funeral of Thomas P. Quigley of 728 East 9th street, Brooklyn, was held Thursday with burial in St. Mary's cemetery, this city upon the arrival of the 1:47 West Shore train. The Rev. Edmund P. Burke pronounced the final absolution at the grave. Many Kingston friends of the deceased were present at the cemetery rites.

Mrs. Mahala Tompkins Vining, widow of Philip E. Vining, died in New Salem last night. Funeral will be held from her late residence Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Burial will be in the St. Remy cemetery. She is survived by a son, Lester R. Vining of New Salem; a daughter, Mrs. Maurice Plank of New Salem; two grandchildren, Norma and Warren; two brothers, Macey D. Tompkins of Prattville, and Charles R. Tompkins of Ashland; also several nieces and nephews.

Schneider Gets Freedom
Lansing, Mich., March 13 (AP)—Louis Schneider, who once tunneled his way out of the Michigan State Prison at Jackson, and then lived 18 years as a respected citizen of New York only to be captured, erroneously in a liquor smuggling ring, was given his freedom today officially. Schneider, now 48 years old, was one of 12 prisoners who tunneled their way under the wall of the prison on January 1, 1919. He made good his escape through a sewer, reached New York and until March, 1937, worked variously as a salesman for an installment concern and as a commission broker.

House Slashes Fund
Washington, March 13 (AP)—The House tentatively slashed $25,000,000 from the agriculture appropriation bill today, cutting in half the allotment for administrative expenses and grants in the farm rehabilitation program. The action on the reduction—largest single cut thus far in the farm supply bill—came on a teller vote of 142 to 119 as President Roosevelt was reported reliably as considering a veto of the entire measure.

Tells of Killing Father
Pottsville, Pa., March 13 (AP)—A motherless, 15-year-old farm girl calmly related today, District Attorney C. A. Whitehouse said, that she shot and killed her father with a shotgun as he lay on a couch because "he beat me once too often." Peter Peolotti, 44, was found late yesterday in his isolated Schuylkill county home near Valley View the back of his head blown off.

DIED
GALLO—Died at East Kingston, March 12, 1942, Mary Concetta, widow of Francesco Gallo, and mother of John Tiano, Salvatore Gallo, Mrs. John Mitchell, Mrs. John Guido, Mrs. Earl Mitchell, Mrs. Mary Lindhurst and Mrs. Anna Carro.

Funeral services will be held from the late home in East Kingston Monday, March 16, 1942, at 9 a. m. and at 9:30 a. m. from St. Colman's Church, where a requiem high Mass will be offered for the repose of her soul. Interment in St. Mary's cemetery, Kingston, N. Y.

LIMBACH—at Katrine, New York March 12, 1942, Anna, wife of the late George Limbach. Funeral at the parlors of A. Carr and Son, 1 Pearl street, Kingston, on Friday evening at 8 o'clock. Interment in St. Michael's Cemetery, Newtown, Long Island.

VINING—at New Salem, New York, March 12, 1942, Mahala Tompkins, wife of the late Philip E. Vining. Funeral at the residence in New Salem on Monday at 1 p. m. Relatives and friends are invited. Interment in St. Remy Cemetery.

MEMORIAM
In loving memory of our dear husband, father and grandson, Percy Van Kleeck, who died three years ago today, March 13, 1939. Remembrance of one so dear often brings a silent tear. Thoughts return to things long past. Time rolls on but memories last. WIFE, DAUGHTER, and GRANDMOTHER.

In memory of Vivien Bishop who passed away twelve years ago today. Your gentle face and pleasant smile With sadness we recall. You had a kindly word for each and died beloved by all. You are not forgotten Vivien dear. Not will you ever be. As long as life and memory last. We will remember you.

Four Survivors Tell Of Submarine Atrocity

Philadelphia, March 13 (AP)—The tale of an unmerciful submarine crew which first sank a tanker by shellfire and then ran down and smashed through two lifeboats and a life raft was entered today in the ever-growing sea legends of the second World War.

It was told by four survivors of a crew of 38 aboard a medium-sized U. S. tanker which went down in the Caribbean Sea February 28.

For more than a week they drifted on two small rafts after the submarine, striking without warning, fired about 200 shells into their ship. It was not torpedoed, they said, but sank within five hours after the attack.

The quartet were picked up by another ship on March 5 and landed here Tuesday night.

The navy confirmed the ship's loss yesterday, but under a new policy, did not make public its name. Its sinking has been reported in earlier dispatches from a Caribbean point, however, and the navy announcement did not increase the Axis submarine toll.

It was indicated that from other sources at least 26 sailors had been saved and put ashore in Caribbean ports although a naval spokesman was without official information regarding the fate of the captain, I. J. Nielsen, and the 33 others.

The survivors landed here are Third Mate Garland Johnson; First Assistant Engineer William L. Alden; Third Assistant Engineer Howard C. Braddy, all of Fort Arthur, Tex., and Wiper Joseph Ivy Dupuis, Oraville, La.

Prof. Wiegand Dies

Ithaca, N. Y., March 13 (AP)—Karl M. Wiegand, 68, botany professor and head of the botany department at the New York State College of Agriculture at Cornell University from 1913 until his retirement last August as professor emeritus, died last night.

Summoned for showing a light from a shop in Epsom, England, during the blackout, a woman said she had told the boy to turn out all the lights, but he did not do so, and on cross examination admitted the boy was 37 years old.

Two Soldiers Attack F. B. I. Agents, Kill One in Fight Arising From Army Desertion

Abingdon, Va., March 13 (AP)—Two army deserters who shot and killed one F. B. I. agent and wounded another seriously were captured in an abandoned house on the outskirts of Abingdon this afternoon.

Abingdon, Va., March 13 (AP)—An F. B. I. agent was slain and another seriously wounded today in a gun battle in a restaurant where they had gone to arrest a pair of army deserters.

Agent Hubert J. Treacy, Jr., 28, was shot to death and Charles L. Tignor, 29, was wounded five times. They were attempting to arrest two soldiers from Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., Charles J. Lovett, 21, and James Evans Testerman, 22.

The soldier pair, who blazed away as soon as the agents identified themselves in the all-night cafe, had been sought since Thursday when, according to H. I. Bobbitt, special agent in charge of the Richmond F. B. I. office, they stole a supply of pistols and ammunition from the fort, kidnapped a taxi driver and escaped into Tennessee.

The driver of the taxi was released at Cleveland, Tenn., and the men drove on to Abingdon, where Treacy and Tignor, tipped by the Nashville F. B. I. office, were on the lookout.

Wallace Ford, another agent, said Treacy was killed instantly and Tignor was wounded in the arm in the cafe as the men, still in army uniforms, ran out. Tignor, giving chase, fell on the street with four bullet wounds in his chest.

Ford said the pair, each holding two pistols, attempted to commandeer a car owned by Andy Hilton, of Abingdon, but Town Policeman Troy Combs jammed his machine into Hilton's. Combs exchanged gunfire with the men as they fled.

The men attempted to take over another car driven by Mrs. Elizabeth Kreger but she pulled the keys out and tossed them across the street.

The soldiers then ran off in the direction of Lebanon, and throughout this morning were the objects of an intensive search throughout southwest Virginia.

All state troopers in the area were mobilized immediately and they were joined by 65 local officers attending an F. B. I. school at nearby Bristol.

W. H. Murphy, chief of the F. B. I. office in Knoxville, said there that the pair beat a Port Oglethorpe sentry severely before commandeering the taxicab. The sentry was identified at Fort Oglethorpe as Sergeant Clifton Hall of Rossville, Ga., and his condition was described as critical today.

Murphy said that both the men were privates in the Third Cavalry assigned to Fort Oglethorpe and gave Lovett's home address as 667 52nd street, Philadelphia, Testerman's as P. M. Box 76, Lynchburg, Va.

The F. B. I. agent said that after beating up hall, the soldiers armed themselves with four .45 calibre revolvers and 100 rounds of ammunition. They then held up the Chattanooga cab driver, Charles F. Landreth, at Rossville, Ga., and forced him to drive them to Cleveland, Tenn., where they put him out of the cab and drove on. The cab was found abandoned at Sweetwater, Tenn.

Lawmakers Study Fourfold Proposal To Raise 7 Billions

Federal Sales Tax, Larger Income, Corporation Taxes and Profits Are Reviewed

Washington, March 13 (AP)—A Federal sales tax, larger income and corporation taxes, and drastic war profits levy were advanced today by lawmakers seeking an extra $7,000,000,000 a year toward financing the war.

The House Ways and Means Committee, after receiving treasury suggestions for stiff increases in income taxes, listened yesterday to a proposal by the National Association of Manufacturers for a $4,400,000,000 sales tax. Some committee members predicted that a compromise between the two plans might be adopted.

"For instance," said Rep. Carlson (R-Kas), "we might find that we could raise $1,500,000,000 from a sales tax and perhaps $2,000,000,000 each from the corporation and income schedules.

"That would tap some of the income of the little fellows who would not pay any income tax and yet would not produce as much from individuals and corporations as the treasury recommended."

Secretary Morgenthau opened the current tax hearing with a proposal that $3,000,000,000 more be obtained from corporations, an almost equal amount from individuals and $1,340,000,000 from new and increased excise taxes.

Cowdin Recommendation
J. Cheever Cowdin, spokesman for the Manufacturers' Association, countered yesterday with the sales tax, and individual and corporation increases of $1,800,000,000 and $1,400,000,000, respectively.

He recommended a 90 per cent profits rate for corporations, compared with a maximum of 88.75 under the treasury plan, and liberalization of the methods of computing that levy. For individuals, he recommended increasing surtaxes to 8 per cent in the lowest bracket, compared with 6 per cent in the present law and the treasury's 12 per cent proposal.

Four members of the State Finance Committee declared that Congress must take the initiative in enacting drastic legislation to reclaim most of the profits from war production.

Senators Connally (D-Tex), Byrd (D-Va), Brown (D-Mich), and La Follette (Prog-Wis) said in separate interviews that an administration proposal for a 15 per cent increase in excess profits tax rates was likely to fall far short of meeting public demands for the elimination of war profiteering.

Connally declared that some firms with government contracts were "cleaning up," and Byrd said the need for legislation to recapture profits was demonstrated by testimony before the joint congressional economy committee, which heard yesterday that the Todd Shipbuilding Corporation was to receive a fee of $4,070,000 for the construction of 37 Maritime Commission vessels at Houston, Tex.

Byrd, who is chairman of the committee, told Charles F. Strenz, Todd Company treasurer, that profits represented in this fee were "exorbitant," despite the company's contention that 75 or 80 per cent of the amount would be returned to the government in taxes.

Dolph Is Probable Congress Candidate

Newburgh, N. Y., March 13 (AP)—Edward A. Dolph of Newburgh, governor of the New York State Kiwanis, announced today "it is probable" he will be a Republican candidate for the congressional seat held 21 years by Rep. Hamilton Fish (R.).

"Although several factors are still to be considered," he said in a statement, "it is probable that I shall be a candidate."

Dolph is a former economics instructor at the United States Military Academy, West Point, of which he is a graduate.

Fish's congressional district, the 26th, embraces President Roosevelt's home county of Dutchess and Orange and Putnam counties.

Registrants to Ask Boards for Data

Albany, N. Y., March 13 (AP)—Men enrolled outside New York city in the third registration for selective service will have to contact their local boards to ascertain their serial numbers, the State Selective Service Board said today.

The national lottery to determine the order number will be conducted in Washington Tuesday night.

In New York city, selective service headquarters announced yesterday, cards will be mailed by local boards to all registrants within a week after the lottery advising them of both their serial and order numbers.

"Update," a state board spokesman commented, "the boards simply haven't sufficient help for such a task."

Minstrel and Dance Slated For Wilbur on March 17

Following out their annual custom, the young folks of the Wilbur and Eddyville Catholic Churches will again hold their minstrel show and dance this year at the Holy Name Church Hall in Wilbur.

Coming as it does on St. Patrick's Day Eve, the show will feature both song and dance in honor of Ireland's Patron Saint.

The cast has been rehearsing diligently for the past month and all reports indicate that this year's show will surpass anything yet presented by a minstrel group in Wilbur. The show is again being coached by Gus Steigenswald who has been responsible for a score of successful performances in the past. Mrs. John Smith is again in charge of the musical direction of the show.

An invitation is extended to the public—particularly former residents of Eddyville and Wilbur—to spend Monday evening at Holy Name Hall, Wilbur, for a minstrel and variety show and dance starting promptly at 8 o'clock.

Dancing will follow immediately after Part 2 of the show which in turn follows the Old Southern Minstrels. Part 2 will be devoted entirely to the presentation of Irish Folk song and dance under the direction of Peter Donald Eddyville.

A nominal admission will be charged and refreshments will be available as usual.

Test for Normal School Will Be Held in City

Among the 33 centers in New York state where those planning to enter State Normal Schools will be given selective admission tests on May 2, will be Kingston High School.

Dr. Herman Cooper, assistant commissioner for teacher education, State Education Department, said that applications to take the tests may be made through high school principals of the state. A personal interview is required in each case and acceptance or rejection hinges on the result together with the applicant's high school record, scores earned on matriculation tests, the high school principal's confidential statement and the applicant's health record. Identification cards must be obtained from high school principals before April 25.

B.P.W. Employees Receive Safety Awards

Freeman Photo

Twenty-two employees of the Board of Public Works were presented safety awards on Thursday afternoon at the city hall in token of their records of driving their trucks and cars without an accident for periods extending from one to four years.

The presentation of the awards was made in the city court room by Mayor William F. Edelmuth. Present at the meeting was Ernest Boehme, representing the Safety Bureau of the American Employes' Insurance Company.

Those who were awarded one year awards were John Bode, John Carpio, Joe Fabiano, John Van Steenburg and John Prucnal.

Those for two years were Robert Brazee, Elwood Finkle, Otto Miller, Robert Perry and John J. Johnston, Jr.

Those for four years were Robert Dederick, James Ellsworth, Lamont Gedney, Donald Murphy, Jesse Passante, Walter Snyder, Edwin Tukey, George Zellmer, Max J. Oppenheimer, Harold Middaugh, A. Foster Winfield, Walter Tammany.

Furniture Is Hit Little in War Time

Essential Materials Are Still Plentiful

Chicago, March—Of all of the commodities purchased regularly by the American family, furniture is among those least affected by the demands of the armament program, according to a survey just completed for the Home Furnishings Industry Committee.

"We have in this country a plentiful supply of hardwood lumber to meet all defense needs as well as normal commercial needs," "Lumber, in the form of solid woods or veneers, constitutes in volume around 90% of the material used in producing wood household furniture," Leonard W. Stratton, chairman of the committee, reported. "We have in this country a plentiful supply of hardwood lumber to meet all defense needs as well as normal commercial needs."

Few Conflicts Found

Except for metals, glue and finishing materials, very few of the materials used in furniture production are needed at all in the defense program—and in those few cases, the supply is ample for both defense and civilian needs, he declared. Also, the industry has been able to find satisfactory alternative materials in most cases where conflicts have developed.

"The use of zinc, aluminum, copper and copper alloys has been entirely eliminated in the production of wood furniture," Mr. Stratton continued. "In lieu of solid brass hardware, steel hardware is being plated and used, thus saving much brass and copper for more vital purposes. In some cases, metal hardware has been eliminated entirely for use as pulls, either through substitution or wood pulls or overlapping of drawers so that the lower side of the front is used for the pull."

Most chemicals required for furniture manufacturing are needed in very small quantities, he pointed out.

Made in Small Towns

Another important factor cited is that furniture production in the United States as a whole, and particularly in the southern area, is largely in small towns and villages outside of defense areas, so that the furniture industry doesn't even compete with defense industries for its labor supply. The labor employed is not experienced in metal working, nor in the operation of precision machinery—both essential phases of the operation of defense plants.

"Perhaps Americans should be thankful that this is true," Mr. Stratton concluded, "for certainly the home is the heart of the nation and the center of the American way of life. Although no sacrifice is too great in the face of the present peril, it is comforting to know that, insofar as the furniture for our home is concerned, little sacrifice is required."

Speaks Tonight

RABBI GUSTAVE FALK

Tonight, March 13, the pulpit of Temple Emanuel will be occupied by Rabbi Gustave Falk of New York city. Dr. Falk is connected with the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, the leading laymen's organization in the liberal Jewish movement.

Dr. Falk received his education at the Hebrew Union College in Cincinnati and the University of Cincinnati, where he majored in sociology, psychology and economics. In 1926 he received the degree of Bachelor of Hebrew from the Hebrew Union College and in 1928 the rabbinical degree from the same institution. His graduate studies included work in the University of Chicago in the field of social service, social statistics and family case work.

He continued his research in the Graduate School of Jewish Social Work, New York, and studied among other things, community planning and problems of Jewish adjustment. He has been interested in psychology and education all through his career.

In the field of practical activities, Dr. Falk's wide experience covers the directorship of the Federation of Reform Synagogues in New York city, directorship of the South East Region of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations and he was one of the organizers of youth and adult study groups throughout this part of the country. His ramified activities in the practical field of youth organization, club leadership and administrative work will bring to all a message of vital practical importance in this critical time.

Dr. Falk has been touring the country for the purpose of awakening the Jewish laity and the American public in general to the need for religiously centered living in a war-ridden world. The topic of his discourse will be "Our Dates With Destiny." The public is invited. The service will begin at 7:45 o'clock.

Tulsa Folk Buy $10,000,000 Bonds To Lead Nation

Tulsa, Okla., March 13 (AP)—Out here in Tulsa, far from the world's battle grounds, they're selling defense bonds at a faster rate per citizen than any other place in America.

Up to today, Tulsa's 142,000 people had bought approximately $10,000,000 worth and that, the treasury department says, is tops for the nation.

For months department officials in Washington had watched Tulsa bond sales with satisfaction, and amazement. They couldn't figure out why a city hundreds of miles from any coastline and seemingly safe from attack, should outstrip even the vulnerable coast centers.

Finally, Vincent Callahan, chief of the press and radio section of the defense savings division, was dispatched to Tulsa by plane to see how it was done.

"The answer," said Callahan after a two-day inquiry, "is simply enthusiasm, extreme patriotism and aggressiveness."

"Tulsa people are promotion-minded. They didn't wait for Washington to tell them what to do."

"Well, there isn't anything you could call a definite plan," explained Banker F. C. Broach, city chairman. "Everybody just got in there and pitched."

The World started a "Buy a Bomber" drive. The paper obtained a promise from the government to apply Tulsa's bond receipts after February 1 to purchase of bombing planes soon to roll off assembly lines in Tulsa's own plant.

In less than a month, five $250,000 bombers were paid for.

The Tribune devoted columns of space to bond publicity and carrier boys of both papers sold bonds and stamps house to house.

A radio campaign was put on by a bank. Two business men, Harry Clark and Fred Schroeder, organized teams and in 12 weeks took orders for $1,000,000 bonds.

"We just put lots of people to work," said Broach.

Chris Melbert of 136 Smith avenue, found asleep last night on the railroad tracks, near the Kingston Coal Co. pockets, was arranged before Judge Matthew V. Cahill in police court today on a charge of public intoxication. As it was the first time Melbert had ever appeared before Judge Cahill he was given a suspended sentence. Frank Krajewski of 66 Third avenue and William J. Martin of Port Ewen, both charged with double parking on Broadway, furnished bail for their appearance later in court.

New War Orders

Washington, March 13 (AP)—New war orders for America:

Secretary Wickard instructed county and state farm war boards to cooperate with the U. S. Employment Service in registering men, women and youths for potential farm labor.

Selective Service announced all draft registrants soon will be required to fill out questionnaires listing their occupational skills, for possible employment in war industries.

The War Production Board orders manufacture of children's bicycles halted to conserve vital war materials and to permit increased production of adult-sized bikes for workers set afoot by the auto tire shortage.

W.P.B. also advised washing machine companies that in all likelihood they would be required to quit production of the machines by May 15. Plans call for converting the industry to war production.

Stores offering delivery service were asked by the Office of Defense Transportation to pool their deliveries, and save tires.

Photographers were cautioned by the Office of Censorship against taking pictures of military objects or other subjects which might give aid to the enemy.

V.F.W. Arranges For Home Display Of Service Cards

Charles B. Skane, commander of Joyce-Schirick Post, No. 1386, has received notice from V. F. W. headquarters in Kansas City, Mo., relative to distribution of a Service Flag window card which has been designed for display in every home in America from which a father, husband, son or brother has gone to the armed forces of the United States.

Use of this service card will emphasize American pride in those who are serving our country in time of war. Proper display of this card will remind all our citizens that millions are risking their lives to protect and defend the security of loved ones at home.

These cards are furnished at no cost and can be procured by addressing Joyce-Schirick Post, No. 1386, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Kingston, N. Y.

First Aid Class Held

The Red Cross first aid class of Rifton had its third evening of instructions on Wednesday night. Mrs. Windrum of Port Ewen instructing. The next class will meet at Rock School next Wednesday, March 18 at 7:30 o'clock.

The Volunteer Nurses' Aid Corps, sponsored by the American Red Cross and the Office of Civilian Defense, offers a real opportunity for women between 18 and 50 to serve their community and their country. Through its local chapters the American Red Cross is emphasizing the urgent need for women to enroll in a Volunteer Nurses' Aid Corps and to assist overworked graduate nurses by performing many important duties in local health services. Local women may enroll at the Civilian Defense Office, 247 Clinton avenue.

Oil Is Subject Of Kiwanis Talk

Growth of Industry Given by L. C. Mackenzie

The inception and growth of the great petroleum industry in the United States, with some reflections on what it represents as a symbol of the American way of living, furnished the theme for the talk before Kiwanis at the regular Thursday luncheon meeting. The speaker, L. C. Mackenzie of Albany, personnel director of the Albany division of Socony-Vacuum, took his listeners back into ancient history at the opening of his talk. He referred to the use of pitch in the building of the Ark and in the construction of the Tower of Babel—both events certainly coming under the head of "old time stuff"—and also spoke of the use of petroleum in ceremonial rites some 4,000 years ago by the Fire Worshipers in the region of the present day Baku oil fields, an important objective in the world conflict.

Mr. Mackenzie noted that the first oil well in Pennsylvania, in 1859, had a capacity of 20 barrels of oil a day. Showing the tremendous growth of the industry he stated that today the oil wells of the country have an output of over two billion barrels a year; investment in the industry totals $15,000,000,000 and employment is given to over a million persons. There are 125,000 miles of pipe lines, mostly used for carrying the crude product.

The United States produces about 63 per cent of all the oil and uses about 60 per cent of the entire world production. Russia is second to this country in oil production, Venezuela third and Persia fourth. This country controls about 75 per cent of the world's oil supply.

The speaker, referring to the importance of oil in warfare, suggested that Germany, apparently, had run up against a production snag. He found that synthetic oils do not work any too well in cold climate. The allied nations, he said, control 94 per cent of the world's oil supply.

Speaking of this country's wealth and progress and its "standard of living" he said that the latter term was purely relative, but he held that here the standard was so high because of the system under which it had operated—call it democracy, capitalism, profit and loss, or what you will. Mr. Mackenzie took occasion to discuss briefly the proposition for an "equal distribution of wealth" and told of one high school girl who said she "agreed with her teacher" that this was the proper thing to be done. He told also of a talk with a young friend who had similar ideas, particularly with reference to "white collar jobs," but who was rather impressed when Mackenzie defined a white collar job as "one that is better than yours, that you haven't got."

Along the same line was the discussion with a man who was particularly interested in the "readjustment" that, he said, must necessarily follow the present crisis. He brought up the familiar contention that "no man can earn $50,000 a year." When a supporter of this idea was asked how much a man could earn he was a bit stumped, but it finally developed that the limit was somewhere around the amount the man was getting on his own job.

Mr. Mackenzie found that it was philosophy of this nature that "has driven the whole world to war," in answering briefly the question "What started the war?"

The speaker urged his audience to take some part in the war activity and suggested that one of the compensations would be the opportunity to make additional contacts with people.
